The Truth About Kittens

By Nick Nelson ~ Daily Bull

So, yeah, I did a little research on kittens since I don't believe they are really the furry bundles of joy everyone claims, and the truths I found are so awesome that there is no time for an introduction.

Humans have always seen kittens as vile and abusive dictators, meowing to seduce their human pets into a calmed mind control state which automatically causes the victim to imitate an elderly person for the duration of the trance. However, on June 2, 385506606 B.C, the Human versus Kitten War began. After humans had nearly wiped out monkeys, kittens rose to challenge humans for control of the world. God promised that if one side masturbated, he would cause mass deaths on the other side. As a result, both sides violently

How To: Stalk Someone (in the UP??)

By Alyse Heikkinen ~ Daily Bull

Stalking someone is an art form. Like all art, it can be done many different ways. Sometimes you're satisfied after only a few hours, sometimes it takes a few days. Truly great artists will spend their lives doing it, but those artists are often poor and a little crazy. There are of course exceptions – musicians who make it big, for instance, can be compared to the paparazzi of stalking and they actually make a living. However, many artists aren't even famous until dead. Dead, of course, being the equivalent to say, prison time. Hopefully you'll learn the skills necessary to avoid that though.

First of all, one must choose their object of attraction. This may or may not be a choice, similar to drawing. For some it just comes naturally, and for others it takes a little practice, but it can be learned. Picking a random person is less than ideal as you have no clue if they're as sick as you or perhaps want to be stalked. Choose someone you know a little. Maybe you have a class with them, maybe you made out with them one wild, drunken night, or maybe you work with them. I suggest not stalking someone you know really well.

Although this may seem simple, it's also much easier to get caught. Someone who visits your home is probably the worst, as you don't want them to see your shrine. Always choose someone of the opposite gender, no matter what your sexual preference. If you are gay, they'll never suspect it and it's always a good excuse. Who's going to believe you're stalking someone you don't want to sleep with? If you're straight, it'll probably be easier to keep things on the down low. For instance, "Oh he's not stalking me, he just has a crush."

You'll definitely be doing a lot of following, so be sure the dress the part – wear camouflage, especially if you're not on campus. Not because you'll blend into the scenery, but because it's the UP and you'll blend in with the Yoopers. Of course, if your target lives in the woods, camouflage is necessary, but not the fashionable kind. Make sure you get the real-looking stuff, and be prepared to invest in a good uniform. When you are on campus be sure not to stand out. Hint – university-branded sweatshirts and t-shirts are always a good idea.

Make sure you invest in a good laptop with a wireless card. You'll need it to check your target's Facebook, MySpace, and possibly LiveJournal every five minutes that they're out of your sight. As mentioned before, you probably won't get rich stalking, so plan to attend classes and get an education somewhere in the midst of it all. A good laptop will help.

Of course, a good digital camera and photo printer are needed. You can create all sorts of slideshows of him or her walking to class, eating lunch, doing homework, or, if you're really good, going to the bathroom. Printing them yourself is a good idea, as you wouldn't want the worker at the photo place to get suspicious.

Create a shrine. While you're trying to lead a relatively normal life, this person may just have to go out of town or manage to unknowingly escape your watch. Try not to let this happen (or tag along), but for those times you can't you will have your shrine to look upon. Plus, it'll be a good way to organize and keep track of all those little gems they happen to leave behind like strands of hair from their brush, candy bar wrappers, or even the underwear they carelessly left on their bedroom floor. Be careful though, because you don't want to get caught. If you must obtain such items (and you know you must), make sure you know their schedule well, as well as the schedules of any roommates. Of course, you'll probably have that memorized in the first week anyway.

There is more to stalking than what's mentioned above, but that will come naturally as ones' obsession ultimately progresses. Should the object of your infatuation figure things out and just so happen to get a restraining order against you, don't let it get in the way. But try not to get caught in the first place.

Comp. Editor's Note: Please don't kill (or worse, stalk) me, Alyse. I was held at gunpoint to make this the feature article. <3 🐾 masturbated. Unfortunately, during the war, friction burns were common. During this time, kittens invented circumcision in an attempt to hinder human masturbation, but this new method did not work on Jews and women. Thanks to the numerous girls' slumber parties, humans have managed to hold their own in the war since then.

In 1904, the Germans finally classified kittens as parasites after witnessing them exit a host cat's vagina after they had outgrown the viscera of the host. It has also been proven in recent experiments that if a kitten catches you sneaking up on it, it will kick your ass. Contrary to the popular belief, kittens cannot see in the dark. Satan recognized them as the most evil living thing after him in 1986 and granted them the ability to "know where you are." Only a few years ago, kittens were credited with the creation of lemonade, a natural kitten steroid.

Do not be distraught, though, as there also kittens that are not violent. These varieties of kittens are all categorized under the term soulless kittens. Soulless kittens have a shelf life of up to 20 years, depending on how well you care for them. The best place to store your kitten is in a cool, dimly lit, monster-free place. It is also recommended to paint your kitten with a water-based paint frequently to help it grow. Kittens are known to produce gravy from its third bladder, which can be bottled and sold at farmers' markets. (Please consult with a kitten farmer before attempting to extract the gravy from your kitten.)

With good care, your kitten will grow into something similar to a lion, though rare cases have been reported of a kitten transforming into a badger. Scientists have proven that, once your kitten has transformed into a larger cat, its insides turn into candy and bars of gold and its liver can be purified into a Philosopher's Stone which can cure all diseases and make you immortal. Don't cut open your cat though, or you're just a sick pervert.

A recent phenomenon, kitten huffing has been increasing in popularity as a relatively safe alternative to drugs, but experts caution to avoid frequent kitten huffing as it is the primary cause of kitten-related human fatalities after kitten masturbation. The procedure to huff a kitten is as follows:

- Obtain a fresh kitten.
- Cup your hands around the kitten's head, leaving a small opening.
- Inhale through the opening until you have completely devoured the kitten's soul.
- Recycle the kitten at your local Kitten Recycling Center or PETA office.

However, kitten huffing is not intended for children under 12 or Catholics, as the Pope deemed it a mortal sin in 1649.
