Bull-Forced Movie "Suggestions": The Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford

By Simon Mused ~ Daily Bull

The movie playing this Weekend at Fisher 135 would be "The Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford." Upon first impression one would realize that the movie title is ridiculously long. I mean come on, ten words is more than enough to get the point of what this movie across just fine. "The Assassination of Jesse James" would have sufficed, maybe even just "Jesse James". Not only did Brad Pitt feel the need to name the assassin in the title, but felt that an adjective describing the character of Robert

Politics for the Everyman

By Nathan "Invincible" Miller ~ Daily Bull

If you're like me, you don't really give a tinkers dozen about politics right now. Or if you're not like me, you probably should consider changing your ways; after all, it's only January and people are already fighting over who they're going to vote for in November. It's about driving me bananas.

Yeah yeah yeah, I know I probably should care. But you know how much hassle that is to keep track of politics when I'm already having a hard time keeping track of my shoes and blocks of wood? It's so much easier to come up with my own opinions of our future would-be presidents. So if you'd like some quality advice on who to vote for in the upcoming election, here ya have it.

Ron Paul: According to unknown sources, something tells me that Ron Paul is probably a vampire. If there were a candidate who was most likely to grow pointy ears, bat wings, fangs, and a totally awesome cloak of evil, it'd be Ron Paul. Also Ron Paul supports something I don't. No vote for him. Too bad.

Hilary Clinton: Well it's obvious she's a woman, but that doesn't really matter, not to me at least. I mean, come on, most of the guys we get in office today are pussies anyway. They don't even fight their own wars anymore, how lame is that? Course, I don't think Hilary will either, so no vote for her.

John McCain: More likely than any other candidate, McCain is probably a zombie. He may not be the oldest (Paul wins by a hair at 72), but he sure looks like the kind of guy who could take a few shotgun blasts before he chomps your brains. In fact, he could already be part of the undead - McCain barely survived a devastating Naval disaster upon the USS Forrestal where 134 other sailors died (and that's a fact!). After that ordeal, he spent 5.5 years lounging around in the Hanoi Hilton over in Vietnam, which to me doesn't sound very responsible while his fellow Americans were being killed in droves. Hence, no vote.

Barack Obama: If it's not obvious, he's black, no matter how much he denies it. I think it's silly that people vote for him because oh his stunning good looks and manly physique. I don't think he's that hot. Obama supports some stuff and is opposed to other things, but I was too lazy to research it further. Most

...Colbert in 2008 from front especially out of all these candidates, because I don't know anything about him, I don't think I'm voting for him.

Mike Huckabee: Not only does he have a funny name, he even acts funny sometimes. Right after Benazir Bhutto was killed, he was nearly quoted to have said, "Somebody killed Buddha? That's a shame, now who's going to stop all those dirty Pakistani terrorist immigrants from invading this fine country?! We're all gonna die!" Instead of running for president, Huckabee should stick with his rock 'n' roll band, Capitol Offense. For all our sakes.

Mitt Romney: If anyone here was an alien, it'd be Mitt Romney. He's got that awesome poofed out hair, eyes that could shoot lasers, and probably has an invisible shield that could protect him from all assassination attempts. Hell, he's even a Mormon, and if that doesn't sound like an alien religion I don't know what is. But even this doesn't earn my vote, as I only support candidates from the planet Earth.

Rudy Giuliani: Aside from the fact I can't spell his last name, I believe Giuliani is the most likely to become a communist if he wins. Other than that, poor ol' Rudy's got a major problem, and that is the former mayor of Gotham didn't stop 9/11 all by himself. And here I'm sure millions of New Yorkers voted for him thinking he was going to save the day every time. Thus, I don't trust him with the security of our fine nation, so I can't vote for him.

John Edwards: Last but not least, we come to Mr. Edwards, who I completely forgot about so pip pop bim bam I just realized he is the least, don't vote, that is all.

This leaves approximately one candidate worth voting for: Ralph Nader. If he runs in 2008, I urge you to vote for the only sensible candidate on the ticker, one who won't pull some trick like everybody else. I can feel it; this might be his big year. Go Green, Vote For Nader! 🍀

...Dingoes from front

Ford along with the manner of which the assassination was carried out was needed. Surely his only possible sane reasoning was that the title didn't seem long enough.

We've all taken American history, and we all know that Jesse James got shot, so there is no point in describing the exact details to the audience. It's history for crying out loud! It's not like they're really ruining the ending or anything. Anyone who went to see that movie and came out saying "Well I can't believe that Robert Ford would shoot him in the back" should be shot in the back themselves. If the producers were truly thinking in this respect I'm surprised the final title wasn't "The Expected Assassination of the Legendary Train-Robbing Bandit Jesse James, Who Possesses an Attractive Bounty for His Death and By No Means has Eyes on the Back of his Head, by the Back-Stabbing Coward Robert Ford, by Manner of a Gunshot to the Back of the Head While Jesse James was Dusting a Picture of His Family at His Mother's House on April 3, 1882". There really is nothing else to say about this movie, as the entire plot, main character descriptions and ending are all contained in the official title.

The Internet Movie Database claims that the only goof in the movie was that the song "A Bird in a Gilded Cage", being sung during saloon scene dated 1892, was not written until 1900. Nothing escapes the seasoned senses of the Internet Movie Database. Also one could see Steve Carell masturbating furiously in the background (sometimes in paintings!) in every scene of the movie where Casey Affleck is present.

I give **insert ridiculously long title of choice** a 5/0, causing Odin to descend to Earth and Surtr will rise from the infernal flames thus initiating Ragnarok. (Microsoft Word does not recognize Ragnarok as a word - Fail!) 🍀
