

DAILY BULL

The Daily Bull is probably not suitable for those under age 18 and should not be taken seriously... like professors who read the Daily Bull!

Wednesday, October 22, 2008

"I detest life-insurance agents; they always argue that I shall some day die, which is not so."
~Stephen Leacock

An Article That Uses the Word "Smorgasborg" A Lot of Times

By Nathan "Invincible" Miller ~ Daily Bull

Ever since I took CE 3332, A Smorgasborg of Construction Fundamentals, I have been infatuated with the word smorgasborg. For the longest time, I wanted to write an article about smorgasborgs and how awesome it would be to have a smorgasborg of something really neat. But I could never come up with anything specific to have a smorgasborg of. That's when it hit me: I would have a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs.

Do you realize how crazy a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs would be? It'd be like a whole big warehouse filled with a smorgasborg of tables covered in a smorgasborg of who knows what. Naturally, it'd all be delivered by a smorgasborg of industrial equipment like backhoes, dump trucks,
...see A Big Buffet on back

If winter doesn't start off with a bang, I'll be extremely disappointed. Bring on the blizzard!

A Modest Proposal: Global Warming

By Hylinn Taggart ~ Daily Bull

Everybody knows about the topic of global warming. In recent years the Earth has been warming up and causing a whole mess of ecological changes. If the Earth heats up too much it could spell disaster for life as we know it. It doesn't matter what is causing the heat up. If we want to keep on living the way we are living, we need to deal with it now.

Many intelligent people are working hard to try to stem the increase in the degrees of the Earth and they have come up with ideas they feel could help save the Earth. They range from lowering carbon emissions to creating reflective clouds to dropping ice cubes harvested from comets into the ocean. All of these ideas hold merit, but they don't match up to the awesomeness of my proposal. I propose that we move the Earth farther away from the Sun.

It makes perfect sense. Let's relate this to a campfire. If you are sitting next to a campfire and you are getting uncomfortably hot, what do you do to cool down? You move away from it. You don't try to cool yourself by blowing on or pouring ice all over yourself. This is essentially what I propose we do. Move Earth away from the campfire instead of trying to pour ice all over it. It may seem daunting, but the task of moving the 5.9742 x 10²⁴ kilogram rock we call Earth is relatively simple. All we need to do is equip the Earth with the largest rockets ever built.

There will be several thousand of these rockets. Once built, each rocket will be placed into an array to form the Very Large Rocket Array (VLRA). The VLRA will be built in the Pacific Ocean and be placed on the Earth's plane of orbit around the Sun. This is so that the VLRA won't be in anybody's way and to provide the maximum thrust in the direction we need it. It is also useful to have all of that water around for the fuel and in case any of the rockets decide they want to explode. Since the Earth is relatively small, we wouldn't need each rocket to be that large. Each rocket would only take up an area close to the size of Rhode Island. To give the Earth an acceleration of one meter per second the VLRA would need to create a total thrust approximate to 10¹⁷ (100 million billion) space shuttles. Each rocket will therefore need to provide a thrust of around 10¹² to 10¹⁴ space shuttles. All of this required energy will be provided

...see Blast off on back

The Steaming Pile

Straight from you-know-where!

Best (Or Worst) Torture Methods

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| Pastaboarding | Unnecessary Dental Surgery |
| Toasting with Creme Cheese | Surprise Buttsecks! |
| Physics with Agin | Perpetual Rick Rolling |
| Non-critical Limb Blending | Bagpipe Lessons |
| Kenny G On Repeat | Kicked by the Fonz |
| Soft Cushions | Looking into a gloryhole |
| Crushing by Beanbag Chairs | Listening to William Shatner's Cover of "Rocket Man" |
| Smothered in Whipped Cream | Being Beaten Up by Carrot Top |
| Kindergarten Ball Pit Exposure | Trapped in a Hamster Ball |
| Public Pool Gallon Challenge | Conjugal Visits with Mike Tyson |
| Lamb Chop Song | Counting to a Million...In Binary |
| Delicious Meat Overdose | Helping Senior Citizens Bathe |
| Internet Overexposure | A Date with Captain Moneyshot |
| Disco Ball Shocks | Reading The Lode |
| Fart Porn Participation | Playing DnD with Nerds |
| Forced to Watch a McCain/Palin Speech | Intelligent Design Lectures |

STUDIO

PIZZA

even better than your mama's pizza

482-5100

10% STUDENT DISCOUNT!
But you gotta ask for it & show us your Tech ID as you pay, because we won't remember.
Discount only on pizza and no extra discount on specials or with coupon.
Oh yeah, no discounts if you piss us off!

...Blast off from front

by none other than the Pacific Ocean. When activated the rockets will take the water from the ocean and perform a form of electrolysis on it. The resultant oxygen and hydrogen will be compressed to liquid form and then used to fuel the rockets.

The VLRA will only need to be fired twice per move of the Earth. The VLRA will be used when the Earth is being accelerated to traveling speed and when being accelerated back down to resting speed. The whole move of the Earth will take a few years because the Earth can only be accelerated to a relatively slow speed without drying out the Pacific Ocean. During the activation of the VLRA, the temperature of the Earth will increase a tad, but will eventually relax back down as the Earth moves on its journey to its new home.

The VLRA should remain built even after the initial move. This is in case the Earth decides to heat up some more or if we go into an ice age, but I have another solution for that all together. Since the Earth will be in a larger and longer orbit, the year will be longer. The longer year would mean longer seasons. This lends itself to better growing seasons for farmers and a longer summer/winter for tourist locations. You could accomplish more on your list of things to do before you're thirty. Think about all that you could get accomplished with a few more days added on to the end of the calendar. 🌱

...A Big Buffet from front

forklifts, and the like. It'd be so delicious, it'd be like having a smorgasborg of Gushers of all the flavors of the universe exploding in your mouth at once.

Now that's assuming the smorgasborg of smorgasborgs include actual smorgasborgs of food. That's where the word smorgasborg comes from. Pretty much smorgasborg means, according to the Wikipedia article on smorgasborgs, "smorgasborg refers loosely to any buffet with a variety of dishes." And that is a fact. Not a smorgasborg of them, but one nonetheless.

Even more naturally than a smorgasborg of machinery operating a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs are a whole smorgasborg of people who are angry that I am using the word smorgasborg wrong. I know. It's also spelled smorgasbord. And Smörgåsbord, which includes a smorgasborg of little thingies that probably show up as blocks because the font the Daily Bull uses only has a limited smorgasborg of acceptable characters.

Course, I probably wouldn't let the smorgasborg of people who don't like how I use smorgasborg into my smorgasborg of smorgasborgs. Instead I'd leave them outside, where I would ambush them with a smorgasborg of traps that I had set up for the exact purpose of making fools out of the smorgasborg of smorgasborg crashers for disliking my smorgasborg misuse.

A smorgasborg of smorgasborgs would not be complete without a smorgasborg of awesome people from a smorgasborg of awesome places. I'd have a smorgasborg of things I enjoy, such as smorgasborgs, as well as my smorgasborg of good friends. I'd also have a smorgasborg of people I don't like, who would be subject to a smorgasborg of really great things that the smorgasborg of people I had invited would vote on to decide what we do to them. A smorgasborg of fun!

After stuffing our faces on a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs, the whole lot of us would need to chill out and digest, which we'd do on a smorgasborg of extremely comfy couches, all which face a smorgasborg of TVs with a smorgasborg of channels to choose from, some of which have smorgasborgs of documentaries on the groundbreaking smorgasborg of smorgasborgs that we were taking part in. Imagine that: full after a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs while watching a smorgasborg of documentaries on the smorgasborg of smorgasborgs at a smorgasborg of smorgasborgs. Could life get any better?

Only if you could tell a smorgasborg of stories about your smorgasborg experiences to the smorgasborg of friends who were unable to make it, or possibly even some of the smorgasborg of people who got ambushed by the smorgasborg of traps if they survived the smorgasborg of injuries the likely sustained. It would be even better if you had a smorgasborg of pictures from a smorgasborg of sweet camera angles that you could piece together into a giant 3-D panorama of the epic smorgasborg of smorgasborgs.

Now that would be the smorgasborg champion. I bet it would be so awesome that a smorgasborg of major museums would be clamoring to add the photo smorgasborg to their smorgasborg collections or famous art. I can see it now: the plaque next to my smorgasborg of smorgasborgs would say something like, "On Wednesday, October 22nd, Nathan Invincible used the word smorgasborg 82 times. Congratulations." Then I would be the smorgasborg champ. Yes. 🌱

And on your right, you'll see the first installment of the Daily Bull's (or Nathan Invincible's) continuing coverage of the upcoming election.

The Daily Bull currently doesn't have a political agenda, other than to inform you, the opinionated voter, what's going on out there that CNN isn't telling you. But first, a word from our sponsor:

Obama Found to Be Part Human

By Nathan "Invincible" Miller ~ Daily Bull

It was revealed late Monday night that Democratic presidential nominee Barack Obama was a human being, possessing the some of the very traits that make us caring individuals.

"When he said he was going to take a few days off to visit his sick grandmother, I think that was the first time I'd ever heard him commit to doing something away from the campaign trail," testified a senior staff member. "It's very unlike him to actually show feeling like that. It's almost, you know, human."

Ever since clinching the Democratic primaries, Obama has led a non-stop war for the White House both on and off the camera. With very little time to spend with his family, his loved ones have been forced to campaign along with him, often jumping auto-graph lines to get a chance to see their father for the first time in person in over six weeks.

"I 'member when my daddy used to read me books and play games with me," says Obama's seven year old daughter Natasha. "Now he's like a mean ol' robot and says stuff on a stand with lotsa people on TV and stuff. I only see him a little while so I'm sad."

Many political pundits believe Obama has been using his family as a propaganda tool to woo voters before the election, and are currently debating whether taking time off to visit a dying relative is a strategic campaign move or an actual act of love and kindness. 🌱

Daily Bull

EDITOR IN CHIEF Tim Kotula	COMPOSITION EDITOR Nathan "Invincible" Miller	WORKS OUT MORE THAN YOU Carrot Top
FACULTY ADVISOR The David Olson	ATE MY HOMEWORK The leaf eating machines	BUSINESS MANAGER Caitlyn Pierce

Nathan "Invincible" Miller, Tim Kotula, John Earnest, Caitlyn Pierce, Liz Fujita, Jeremy Mr. Sunshine Loucks, Simon Mused, John Pastore, Deforest Warren, Ivan Lysenko, Zach Simpson, Brett Jenkins, Macklyn Hilly, Ryan Richards, Zach Simpson, Matt Villa, Mark Cruth, Mary Kennedy, Elizabeth Masters, Heather Vingsness, and whoever came up with Jones Soda.

©2008 by the Daily Bull, a non-profit organization. All rights reserved. Articles may be freely distributed electronically or on late night talk shows provided credit is given, and that this notice is included. The Daily Bull reserves the right to refuse any advertisements or guest articles without reason. All opinionated letters sent to the editor (on paper or to dailybull@gmail.com) will be treated as material to be published unless expressly stated otherwise by the sender. Original works printed in the Daily Bull remain the property of the creator, however the Daily Bull reserves the right to reprint any submissions in future issues unless specifically asked not to do so by the creator. If you keep reading this small text, you'll swear it feels like the first time, it feels like the very first time.

The Daily Bull would like to thank the Daily Bull for buying our own damn printer that this publication is printed on. We would also like to thank the Student Activity Fee for helping to pay for our paper and toner costs.

Advertising inquiries, questions & comments should be directed to dailybull@gmail.com