Super Troupers

By The Troupe!

~ Guest Writers ~

Where can one watch Zanzibar the Great go on a vindictive killing spree after being elected to the post of Head Lizard for the 305th time in a row? Where would you go to see somebody who was late to work because they were engulfed by the Atlantic Ocean, rescued by the famed Yellow Submarine, and shot like a torpedo out of said bright buoyant boat? Where should you go if you simply want to hear someone sing about their mother's lack of socks? Well, the answer to that is... drumroll... The Troupe Show, MUB ballroom A from 7-9 this Friday!

In case you're wondering what the heck I'm talking about, the Troupe is a student group devoted to improvisational acting—basically like SNL, but cooler because we really ARE live. We wear these ridonkulous bright clown-pants and go into our shows not even

There is something that we, the observant members of the Daily Bull Staff, have noticed lately. Considering the complete horrendous ratio of males to females, it has become quite obvious that there are people having sex. This may not seem what was your reaction when you first learned your women were pregnant?

MIKE: I had bought some waffles when possible or logical in a place where the average guy is a CS major, but let me remind you of the most important lesson of Jurassic Park.... Nature finds a way.

Now, to be fair, we have decided to actually let some of these people speak out. Of course, the only way to know for certain who was actually having sex was to either catch them, or just track down pregnant girls and talk to them or their guys. After getting slapped a few times and one very sad looking bunny head appearing in my bed, I decided to just talk to the parents-to-be. Ironically, I didn't have to look far. Two of our very own members will serve our purpose nicely.

So now here we sit with Mike Lennon, proud father of his one month old son, and Ray Martens, who is due to become

Now I understand both of you have, or are having, boys. Was that what you were hoping for?

MIKE: Despite being raised in Ann Arbor, where the radical feminist community has everyone believing that the penis is evil, I was actually quite proud to be having a son. I anticipate the father/son bonding activities that we will be able to have... teaching my son the proper technique of chugging down a beer in a matter of seconds. And of course, nothing says bonding time like beating each other half to death, like in 300.

RAY: I'm a little more neutral about having a son. I didn't really care one way or the other, however having a boy now will save my credit cards, and prevent me from having to spend life in prison for killing the first boy who ever even looks at my daughter.

What about school and the social life?

MIKE: The Baby Bjorn Carrier allows me to take my son with me during my important engagements; while playing beer pong, my son will be the perfect tag team partner.

RAY: Well, most of my social activities are held through the internet, so when I'm trying to study for that physics test, I'll be making him farm gold for me. I'll be sure to do it in Player Vs Player areas so that he learns the value of being a good sport, even when he gets killed every 30 seconds.

The Probing Question

By Tyler Botbyl ~ Daily Bull

Ok all of you have seen the anal probe from the movies. The scariest piece of medical equipment ever developed. Well that is all well and good until you find out that a new tool for fighting prostate cancer is actually the transrectal ultrasound. Yeah you haven't heard of this. That is because it is such a taboo instrument.

Well now the importance is greater than ever before and the use of such a device just might save your life in the end. The ultrasound device is simply a new wand like tool that they insert into the rectus and have a peek see at your prostate. Well you may say you will never have one done, but would you rather have the doctor give you the finger, you know what I mean. So the next time you think your safe, think again, because we biomed's always have the upper hand!
