The Daily Bull is probably not suitable for those under age 18 and should not be taken seriously... like inmates raising puppies!

STD-Oriented Kids' Television

By Liz Fujita ~ Daily Bull

SAN FRANCISCO - Think Ash had a crazy idea trying to stuff half-ton creatures into apple-sized containers? So did TV producers over at ABC Family. The station recently pitched a spinoff of the popular Pokemon series, entitled Sniffelus, designed to educate children from an early age about the risks of sexually transmitted infections.

ABC was hesitant to reveal the premiere date, but promises a "unique depiction of real-world issues - none of this blue pawprint garbage."

The show will star a young creature named Sniffelus - half lemur, half squirrel, he is naive and innocent. Sniffelus has a strange fur condition that causes him to shed in patches occasionally, but otherwise he is perfectly

K-Day: Bull Box Competition

**Author's note: there are a lot of depraved people out there with wild imaginations. Apparently these people read the Bull, as some of these sentences are just...wow guys, wow. Oddly enough, there are 42 of them. Enjoy my depravity trying to piece together EVERY submission we had.**

Italics are Mr. Sunshine's additions. Every sentence submitted has a unique #.

It all started yesterday, a day I call BAD FUR DAY.<sup>1</sup> Joe was so cold he worried that his testicles might come out his arse.<sup>2</sup> He read the sign in front of him, which said, "All employees must wash hands, if no employees available, customers must wash their own hands<sup>3</sup> in the communion dish.<sup>4</sup> Carved into a stall was a wonderful message: "Lizica loves kale!<sup>5</sup>" Liz was waiting outside, but little did he know<sup>6</sup> Libertarians are dumb.<sup>7</sup> After stealing Strawberry douche<sup>8</sup>, he left the washroom and met her outside. She cried rainbows<sup>9</sup> as she slowly walked away from the rotting horse carcass, cigarette lit, toward the dirigible.<sup>10</sup> Liz Fujita is the coolest f&#%#@r ever!<sup>11</sup> he thought as they sang Sweet Caroline<sup>12</sup> and drank Kquality beers of the Kweenaw.<sup>13</sup> I met them there as well and quickly declared, "I have just lived my dream of becoming buttered toast."<sup>14</sup>

Joe broke up the awkward silence that followed with a gem of his own: "Nathan 'Invincible' is my father."<sup>15</sup> I picked up a newspaper from a nearby rack, only to see a startling headline: "Penguins invade<sup>16</sup> Applesauce<sup>17</sup> Festival!" What a wild time they must be having I thought.

Later in the day found the three of us in Joe's house. His friend Jill came over and, seeing A giant tub of candy,<sup>18</sup> told us, "I love banana laffy taffys!"<sup>19</sup> Joe laughed. That's when I stood up, grabbed my crotch, and told him<sup>20</sup> "Penis goes where?"<sup>21</sup> Throwing off his clothes, he pointed at Jill, while Liz said, "Mr. Sunshine has a penis? I would have never guessed."<sup>22</sup> Liz and I both grimaced as he gracefully entered her, enjoying her squeals.<sup>23</sup> "Ow! Don't put that there!"<sup>24</sup> Jill complained. I quickly cracked, "That's what she said!"<sup>25</sup> That was all it took, as Liz and I ran away from that 'show.'

On my way out, I took a look at Joe's list of notes to remember. Some of the best were, of course, "It takes forever to be awesome<sup>26</sup>," "RA Zack Wheeler is Idea: OxyClean super condoms, for your sexy OCD friends!

Spy Row Cheats - A bunch of prisoners - convicted of treason and espionage - all start hanging out with the same lady convict during their recreation hour. Suddenly, they all begin acting strangely and feeling ill. Sniffelus sings them a song about being more careful about who they share their basketballs and baseball bats with.

Her Peas? - A famous vegetarian chef comes to Very Dreary to promote her new book. Many of the townspeople start breaking out in itchy rashes after eating on of her salads. Sniffelus warns her that working with other people’s cucumbers and carrots can be dangerous since she doesn’t know where they came from - “always check your veggies’ histories before you eat them!”

Critics are still unsure of the show’s educational merit, fearing a nationwide flood of sexually deviant youngsters. The themes in especially “Spy Row Cheats” and “Her Peas” concern more than a few parents - might these images not come across as “too mature?”

ABC promises to do their best to keep the metaphors innocent, yet retain the messages of caution. “We teach kids to share, but sharing is not always caring. Little ones need to realize that things such as STD’s are out there.”

PETA has threatened to bring suit against the Sniffelus staff for portraying (a) diseased animals, (b) use of medication on animals, and (c) inhumane cross breeding (Sniffelus being half lemur and half squirrel). ABC politely encouraged them to consider carrots while watching episode 5 - “As Wholes.” 🍏 normal. He and his friends live in a small town called Very Dreary (V.D.), where nothing of great importance ever seems to happen.

Fearing backlash from outwardly STD-related metaphors, the show’s writers have put forth a good-faith effort to keep the material family-friendly, but meaningful - respect others, be healthy, and be conscious of what you share with whom. Although the series is still in production, the Daily Bull was privileged enough to be told a few episode plot lines.

Gone, Oh Rhea! - Sniffelus mistakenly touches Rhea’s sensitive tail after she asks him not to, giving her itches and boils. She leaves Very Dreary, angry and sad that Sniffelus was such an inconsiderate friend. He apologizes and offers to take her to a doctor - but she is gone.

Clam’s Idea - Mr. Clam notices that he has a strange purple ooze coming out of his shell. In flashback, he realizes that this is because Sniffelus tried on some of his clothes. Clam realizes that an orange fruit paste will make it go away, and that if he had just made Sniffelus wear another layer before going in his clothes, there would be no issue.
