The Darwin Awards

By Mike Cardwell ~ Daily Bull

Not so long ago, the new Darwin Awards came out, and I wholeheartedly agree with the 'winners.' While the overall winner is a gas station thief who attempted to fire a .44 at the shocked station attendant. When the gun fired no more than air, the con man curiously inspected the gun, apparently not understanding the inner workings of its extremely complex mechanisms. At the end of his thorough inspection, he began clicking the trigger each time he changed his viewing angle. The last time he revolved his revolver he took a glance down the barrel, clicked the trigger for a sixth time, and the single round in the gun torpedoed through his forehead, getting a great look at his inner workings.

Extremist Commuter Caught in Sex Scandal

By Benjamin Loucks ~ Daily Bull

A shocking revelation in the extreme sports community has left Thaddeus Gutter, a married 31-year-old extreme commuter, in the hot seat. Recent photos of him doing the horizontal tango with two Houghton ladies have popped up on the internet, and there have been quite a few words said about them.

Extreme commuting, for those not in the know, is an extreme sport in which participants attempt to get from point A to point B in the craziest way possible. Past participants have used human cannons, ski lifts, and Jet-Assisted Take Off rockets strapped to motorcycles in order to arrive at their destination in record-breaking time. The crazier the stunt attempted, the more 'bro points' the participant receives. Mr. Gutter, a veteran of four years to the sport, has received numerous awards for his unorthodox methods; last year, he attached a sidewinder rocket to a broomstick and flew wizard-style from San Francisco to Las Vegas.

His most recent exploits, apparently, are the talk of the sports community. Many critics are denouncing his sexual exploits, claiming that a married man should be more faithful to his wife.

Many of his fellow extreme commuters, however, have been offering Mr. Gutter high-fives and comments of "Score, dude! Two chicks at once, how awesome is that!" Houghton officials were unavailable for comment, as many of them were repeatedly reviewing the sex video released with the pictures behind closed doors.

Gutter's wife, upon hearing the news of the pictures, was reported to have had an argument with him, culminating in him driving off after nearly being beaten with his trophy sidewinder missile. Mrs. Gutter was quoted by police as saying "I didn't try to bludgeon him, he was stuck in the car so I was valiantly attempting to take the door off so I could drag him to safety! You have it all wrong!"

The two girls in the pictures and video, who have not been identified for privacy reasons, have been quoted as saying "Hey, he can always come back... I'd ride his broomstick anytime, mmm-hmm!" Since this incident, several other women have come out of the woodwork, claiming that Gutter has had sexual relations with them as well. Of particular note, one was Mrs. Tiger

Mr. Gutter could not be reached for comment. His agent responded by telling us that Gutter was working on his newest stunt, which is reported to involve an orgy with midjets while skydiving to his next destination using bed sheets as parachutes. Godspeed, Thaddeus Gutter. ☹ new method of cocaine abuse, doctors dissect the body of a 34-year-old man who had suffered the loss of multiple 'important parts.' Apparently, cocaine users who happen to also be sex aficionados enjoy using hypodermic needles to inject synthesized and concentrated solutions of liquefacted cocaine into their penises slightly before coitus. This guy pumped enough cocaine into his urethra to kill himself had he injected it directly into his arm.

The medical term for a freakin' amazing weekend is priapism, and on this man's third straight day of constant infallible erection, he was admitted to New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. Three days after entering the hospital and following a schedule of constant 'therapy,' his erection 'suddenly subsided,' according to Dr. Samuel Perry, a professor of clinical psychiatry. While I'm not exactly an expert on six day erections, I'm pretty sure a psychiatrist isn't the person you'd like to hire to solve your issue.

Over the next twelve hours, the deoxygenated blood from his penis seeped into his body including his feet, hands, genitals, back, and chest. When the blood coagulated, the surrounding tissues began to die at which point he was transferred to the burn unit of the hospital. The burn unit? Seriously? There, doctors waited for the spread of gangrene to slow, at which point they chose to amputate the man's legs, all of his fingers, and watch and giggle as the man's penis and testicles fell off on their own. Idiot. It comes in cream, too. Cocaine cream – the ultimate Viagra.

Finally, my personal favorite, a man who absolutely positively needed to be relieved of his ignorant life for urinating in the gene pool. We've all had the experience – gotta walk a brother home after they've drunk 'a little too much' at a party off campus and the walk gets more and more unbearable as your drunken friend rambles on and on about amazing beer pong shots, but these three frat boys took it too far.

A mile down the road from Middle Tennessee State University, a couple of young, very drunk MTSU frat boys climbed a barbed wire fence that was intended to keep lesser mortals out of an electric substation, receiving numerous small cuts which began to slowly seep blood. One frat boy spotted a potential target and climbed to the top of a transformer and decided to do what he could to remove this obstruction from his urine path. That alone was an obviously bad idea, but it got worse when he attacked his secondary target, a high-voltage transformer, with a direct stream of urine, all while standing directly on top of the electrified utility. What's worse? Consider his primary target. As if electrocution via genitalia wasn't bad enough, consider his motivation to pee: a wasp nest "target" attached to the transformer. Needless to say, the wasps were the lesser of his worries. He did not live long. ☹
