Brevity.
~ D. Olson

The Daily Bull Takes to the Air!

You know what's more awesome than a deep-fried gold bar? Four Daily Bull staffers have totally rad WMTU radio shows this semester! Talk about storming the trenches! We've practically got blanket coverage on Sundays. All the better to spread our humor and creativity to the masses. Here's a quick rundown of each of our shows, written by the DJs themselves.

Vector Addition ~ John Pastore

From the depth of Fall 2003, and continuing since, Vector Addition has been my near constant music quest; to seek out stranger music; to expound on my favorite themes: of robots and tomorrow and other wonderful dreams. Vector Addition starts with the simple theory that; for any given song and any given fact; these exist as a linear combination of simple themes of songs, and as given we can then define a path that's simple, never

Shameless Plugs for Shameless Outlets

By Simon Mused ~ Daily Bull

The Student Involvement fair that happened on Tuesday, January 19th (you know, the one you didn't go to) was a mixed bag of success. The vast majority of the attendees were there to support the student orgs they were already a part of, although the inter-organization mingling made the event worth going for me personally. So in an effort to recruit people to orgs where you could find awesome folk like me, I give you these shameless plugs.

First org on the "should join" list would be the Daily Bull. This goes first because if it wasn't then the editor would put it first anyway I like it best. The Daily Bull meetings make me look forward to Wednesday nights, an event I've been trying my hardest to attend each week for the past 2.5 years. We've got pizza, and the Pile, and random other hilarious crap that make planned 45 minute meetings go on till 10:30pm sometimes, long after we were told to go home. We are also fiendish gossips when we are in the mood, with ears all over campus on what's going on, where, and who's involved. So if your humor varies between critical to 4chan-level nonsense, join us! Meetings are Wednesdays, 9:15pm in Walker 144.

Next on my list is Mu Beta Psi, the co-ed musical service organization. Being a Brotherhood, we take helping the Visual & Performing Arts Department, Rozsa, and even the Calumet Theater seriously. However, we are also a rambunctious gang of assorted musicians and non-musicians from all four corners of the campus, made up of pep-banders, swingers, skankers, rockers, metal heads and even the guys with no musical talent whatsoever. If anything, join because we are a ridiculously awesome family with solid resume building experiences to be had. Look for a rush poster or chill with us at the MUB student org offices!

Bull? Check. Psi? Check. Next up is WMTU! Become a DJ and achieve instantaneous street cred! Tell all those posers to shut it, as you blow their minds with incredible music from our huge library! No seriously, it's quite large and diverse. Want a metal show? Sure thing. Techno mad? We've got plenty of electronic beats for you to match your pulse accordingly. Hootie & the Blowfish and Nickelback your thing? We aren't here to judge. We might have a slot open for those really interested, but if you really want to get involved behind the scenes then come to the staff meetings Wednesdays at 6pm in the room right across from the WMTU station.

Sound and Lighting Services would interest those of you who like to get paid. Heavy-duty sound equipment junkies will be even more thrilled. SLS has some REALLY wicked gear to make all your high-quality-sound-based dreams come true. There's pretty much a garage full of awesome toys that are sure to make any sound design major jizz their pants, along with a vast collection of lighting supplies at our disposal. Visit our website if you want to join in on all the fun!

I'm also in Social Dance club, but I haven't been to a meeting yet, so I can't pitch them at the moment. I also attended numerous Swing club functions my freshman year (maybe I should do that again). I'm not a member of these things yet, but here are some more recommendations: Alpha Phi Omega (another service fraternity!), Permanent Floating Riot Club (random shenanigans!), HARO (anime!), Husky Taekwondo (kick ass!), SWE (meet chicks!), MUBoard (run the place!), and more! If you want to know about these organizations or any others, just e-mail me at snmused@mtu.edu. I can point you in the right direction as I tend to know things I shouldn't. But join my organizations first. I'm obviously well cultured, and you can be too! 🐾 wrong. A smooth transition must exist from song A to song B, and we can even find this if we select songs randomly. So to start my show and to expand my music knowledge, I pick 20 random albums from the CD's and vinyl records. I scan I sort I wiki, I place them in an order – and lo, the music vector's smooth, every Sunday night from Ten naughty.

Simon & Heather's Radio Extravaganza ~ Simon Mused

Want to listen to a radio show where you have no idea what's going to happen next? Want to listen to a show that plays your favorite genre and then proceeds to introduce you to your new favorite genre then back again? Want to jam with your favorite bands on your way to church? Hell yeah you do! Then tune into WMTU 91.9FM every Sunday at 8 in the morning to wake up to something extraordinary! Will it be Rhianna? Streetlight Manifesto? Less Than Jake? Simon and Garfunkel? These are all tunes played with a pattern known only to the mastermind DJs Simon Mused and Heather Vingsness, whose ability to be awake that early and still keep fire out of the station earns props on its own. Guess our theme and you could get an on-air shout out for being a clever little bastard! Make a request and screw up the system! We dare you.

Crisco Inferno ~ Nathan Invincible

Have you ever thought to yourself, "Gosh, wouldn't it be great to dance to hip electronic beats, twirl a disco ball on my fingertips, and cook a five course meal at the same time?" I'm sure we all have at some point, but more often than not, those wholesome beats are nowhere to be found. Fortunately for you, there is an answer: awesome electronic music, exclusively on Crisco Inferno!

Playing every genre of electronic known to man, alien, and robot, Crisco Inferno is your go-to show for mesmerizing melodies and comedic entertainment. Heck, since the tunes start playing right around dinnertime, maybe I'll even introduce a "cookin' to the beat" happy hour, complete with yummy recipes to fuel your next dining room rave session. From DJ Shadow to Daft Punk, Tiësto to Thievery Corporation, I guarantee there'll be something for everyone. Check it out every Thursday night, 6-8 PM. Be there!

Alex Wierschke

Alex also has a WMTU show, but didn't manage to get a show blurb in before we went to print. However, after listening to a good portion of his show this past Sunday from 8-10 PM, I couldn't help but wonder if this man was inside my brain, playing me music he knew I would like. With sweet techno mixes and dance music coming out of everywhere, Alex's show is sure to impress. Key words to know: awesome, sweet, pumpin', and intense. 🐾

If you're interested in listening to some of the best WMTU has to offer, here's a quick recap.

Simon: Sunday Mornings, 8-10 AM
Pastore: Sunday Nights, 10 PM-12

Alex: Sunday Nights, 8-10 PM

Reasons for the Season

By Matt 'Undercover Minority' Villa ~ Daily Bull

With the recent heat wave that Tech has experienced, I have heard quite a few atrocities from blasphemers on campus. People walking around saying things like, "Man, it's nice to only have to wear a sweater," or "Wow, grass, awesome, I can't wait to crap on an American Flag," or even, "I hope it stays this warm all winter, then I can go slaughter babies in sacrifice to my satanic lord without a jacket on."

If any of you fall into this category of people that actually enjoyed that little hot snap we had, then you should be beaten and sent to Northern so you can live out your lives in mentally slow ignorance like the rest of them. There are quite a few reasons why you should love winter, even with the cold and snow. So much in fact, that I'm about to go buy a new pair of knee-pads myself, so I can thank Jack Frost properly.

Let's start with the temperature. Without below freezing temperatures, the snow melts, and that sucks. Remember that small period of time after the pretty leaves fell before it started to snow? Remember how dead everything was and how much you wanted to slit your wrists just to see some color? Yeah, that would be all winter long – enjoy, you heat loving fuck-tarts (you know who you are GLARE). Not to mention the return of one of my personal major enemies, and probably a few of yours as well, the almighty Tech Spider. Without the cold to keep them at bay, they would multiply so quickly that soon an army of hand sized arachnids would be coming to eat you, most likely from the inside out, kind of like a human hot pocket if all you were given was a straw to eat it with.

Next up, snow. Let's face it, there isn't THAT much to do up here without snow. No drunken snowboarding, drunken snow angels, snow bongos, drunken snow statue building, drunken skiing, drunken snowshoeing, drunken drinking, etc. That's not even counting the things you can do sober, though why you would choose to is a mystery to me, but it's nice to have the option. Without the snow, it's pretty much left to drunken drinking, so you can forget that you have nothing else to do.

I'm too freakin' happy right now that it's snowing that I don't have the attention span to list out all 9001 other reasons why winter is the shit, so here's the conclusion. You hear anyone say it's too cold out, or that they are tired of snow, knock their ass out and Fed-ex them to Florida with the rest of the geriatrics. 🐾
