Man with the Screaming Brain

By Steve Whittaker

~ Daily Bull ~

Every once in a while a movie comes along that just moves your soul. It takes you to a utopia of moviedom (yes I made that word up) that just gives you a constant feeling of euphoria. Such excitement from a film is rare indeed. However the movie that I'm about to review is not one of those movies. It is however an intriguing film.

Bruce Campbell is "The Man with the Screaming Brain". Not only does Bruce star in this delicious film, he also wrote and directed it as well. It is a film about greed, betrayal, love, and murder. Though slated as a horror movie it really isn't all that scary as it is comically ridiculous.

Brief Synopsis: William Cole is a rich business man who is the CEO of a drug corporation. Whilst visiting Bul...

most of them are pretty unrealistic; lose 30 pounds in a month, start eating healthy (non-dorm food basically), suddenly find your one true love, etc etc. The only one most people will probably keep at this school is "abuse my liver as much as physically possible without actually dying".

Rumor has it that at the beginning of each New Year, the New Year's Fairy goes around and tries to grant as many of these unachievable New Year's resolution as he physically can. Armed with the aid of alcohol, drugs and several metric tons of glitter and confetti, he flies about the United States to do his work. Starting from the East coast and heading West through the time zones, this wonderful figment of our dreams lowers our inhibitions and expectations with his arsenal of toxic substances, so that we might actually be able to achieve our own resolutions.

With a few too many shots here and there, one might be able to abuse their liver, find that 'special' someone, and maybe even start to lose those 30 pounds after another few shots later in the night. When you have the New Year's fairy on your side, anything is possible!

People We Know Running in Snow

By Bill Melcher - Daily Bull

It's been said that Tech students get really bored on winter Saturdays. The handy old standbys of skiing, snowboarding, drinking, snowmobiling, sleeping, doing homework, and going to Wal-Mart (or any combination of those) eventually wear out because you can only do so much of them, and they all consume a large portion of at least a day.

It's also been said that we've got a screw loose. I like to call it Textbook Induced Tourette Syndrome (TITS). Since that's not a real ailment, there's been difficulty proving how off-kilter Tech students can get in the winter months. BUT NOW *drum-roll* ... it's here. Complacent with their usual Saturday activities, a group of people decided to do the most illogical thing I've ever seen: Run a 5k in the winter.

I see people jogging in their fancy UnderArmor with iPod cords dangling about when it's 10 degrees out and I think "natural selection", but put together an entire 5k? Blasphemy, right? Nope, it's really happening. Locals will be standing by to drag frozen bodies out of the streets as they fall ... we don't ask what happens after that. I suspect they become part of the DT's famous wings. So if you're bored tomorrow (Saturday, January 22), come to the Super 8 at 10am and run/freeze your extremities off! Sponsored by EcoCar, hot food and free shit at the finish line. =) garia with his wife Jackie he meets a Russian Cab driver named Yegor. As it turns out Yegor is an ex KGB who complains about how he was forced to become a cab driver after the fall of the Soviet Union. William, after seeing Yegor's knowledge of the local area, decides to hire him to help him get around the city while he is in the area. Cole also asks Yegor to take his wife to all the shopping districts while he conducts business. Jackie, currently unhappy in her marriage, ends up hooking up with Yegor.

While all this is happening, a mad doctor, Ivanov and his assistant Pavel have developed a drug that allows cells from different people to work together harmoniously. Upon having heard of William being in the city he decides to see if he can get his discovery endorsed.

After both being killed by a gypsy named Tatoya, Cole and Yegor are revived by Dr. Ivanov. However, Cole is no longer just himself; due to the brain injury he received the doctor combined his brain with donor tissue from Yegor. The two men both occupy the mind of Cole each controlling half their body and are then forced to reconcile their differences being capitalistic and communistic ways to find Tatoya.

I'm purposely leaving out some of the finer plot details because I want all of you to go out and watch this little number yourselves. It is a fine piece of cinematic production filmed in a lovely 80s quality filmography, awkward situations, and plenty of odd twists. I am going to give it 3 mail order Russian brides out of 5. ☺ they spent New Year's Eve. For most people, all this means is getting intoxicated again. At this school, we know that you probably woke up drunk and just kept on drinking.

So, how many of you will be just sitting around being bored, how many of you will be playing WoW, how many of you will be able to keep the abusing your liver resolution, and how many of you will be spending your year smooching on someone?

And how many of you will be spending your year in a club in Detroit, getting a little frisky with a sailor? Please New Year's fairy; make all our wildest, drunken dreams come true! ☺

Matroyshka Doll

The following is a series of messages encrypted with ciphers and nested within one another. As you solve each layer, hints for solving the next will be revealed. Spaces and punctuation have been preserved to keep things easy. Remember, there's more than one way to skin a matryoshka doll! The first layer is encrypted by a shift cipher- each letter has been rotated by a fixed number of letters in the alphabet. The sentences are also conveniently spaced for your problemsolving needs and enjoyment.
