Bollywood vs Hollywood

By Jodhbir Singh ~ Daily Bull

The other, I got shocked, I mean very shocked. You know when you want to use a higher degree word than Fuck, or Shit, and you can't find it? Yes, I was that #%#@#&% ing shocked. Actually, I have grown up watching Bollywood movies (Indian) with actor and actress doing melodramatic scenes, stretching it so long that you want to scratch your head or balls; dancing and singing during the movie; and when it would come to a hot scene the lights would be lowered (in the movie) and next scene would be a sun rising on a seashore.

Any Bollywood movie that would have one or two of these hot scenes would be considered a 'mast (awesome) movie.' Unfortunately, you would have to watch a good part of the movie to reach up to that scene. However, yesterday, I got shocked because within 12 minutes of the start of a bol-

Enjoying Alcohol

By John Pastore ~ Daily Bull

Wednesday was the night of Winter Carnival, and it can be assumed that some of you were planning to drink. How can you optimize this? What you're basically looking for is a way to keep track of your blood alcohol content, and maintain that BAC inside of an optimal range for the night. Now, BAC can be found electrically by noticing how your alcohol soaked breath affects the capacitance between parallel plates. Without such a tool, you're left with estimates based on your body mass and quantity and the quality of your drank. The imperial equation is:  $(150 \text{ lbs} / \text{your weight}) * [(\% \text{ alcohol in drink} / 50) * (\text{ounces consumed})]$  \* .025 with the phrase between brackets being a summation if you've consumed multiple types of alcohol of different concentrations. This may be a bit difficult to calculate, so here is a table of standard values for 1, 2, 3, and 4 drinks, for males and females.	100lbs: .04m .05f, .08m .09f, .11m .14f, .15m .18f

	140lbs: .03m .03f, .05m .07f, .08m .10f, .11m .13f
	180lbs: .02m .03f, .04m .05f, .06m .08f, .08m .10f
	220lbs: .02m .02f, .03m .04f, .05m .06f, .07m .08f

This beverage is not named LOLs because it tastes funny. It is named so because it will make you do funny things...

What range should you be shooting for? This depends upon your plans for this night. If you intend to be driving, then note that the legal limit in this state is .08% - as by this point, your depth perception and peripheral vision are probably becoming shot. If you're not driving, then you'll probably try to drink more - though anything from .10-.19% will probably begin screwing with your darker-emotions, motor control, and speech, and unless you're careful will show everyone what an asshole you really are. .20-.29% will bring on lywood movie the actor and actress were in the bed. I thought I might have scrolled the seeker bar but I was wrong. They were in the bed within 12 minutes, literally. It was a remarkable achievement in the history of Indian film industry that the good stuff of a movie had been shown at the very start of the movie.

Whatever may be the reason, I watched the scene couple of times to make me believe it firmly and then continued watching the remaining movie. Later on, things became clear to me- I wasn't wrong. The Indian actor was behaving exactly as he should have (or I expected him), but the actress was the main reason for raising the 'bar' in the industry.

According to the movie, she had grown up in the New York and she was in Mumbai on a sabbatical leave and new to the culture. Whatever they say, she brought Hollywood with her to India. Many thanks to her that now we won't have to wait long to find the suspense in the movie. One thing I like about Hollywood is that they don't waste time. Five seconds of silence between the actor and actress means total agreement on the argument. On the 5.01 second, the game begins. By the way, why should they waste time? After all, they have to save the world in the remaining half an hour.

Happy Valentines Day from The Bull. Got a pick-up line that worked today? Or didn't work but was hilarious? Text it to 1-801-200-DERP. And remember, be safer!

All Nighter is an Alcohol-Free Event - Liz Fujita

Last Wednesday through Friday, _____ (city) celebrated its annual _____ (noun 1) Carnival. It was a celebration of snow, _____ (plural noun 1), and students _____ (-ing verb) all over campus. First years had their first experience building _____ (noun 2) statues, with this year's theme being _____ (number) Pages Unfold in the _____ (adjective) Cold. They also quickly learned that there are free _____ (food) in Fisher late at night, deep fried _____ (plural noun 2) are bad for you, and that no matter how hard they try, _____ (3 Greek letters) will always make a better _____ (noun 3) than the rest. stupors, memory glitches, and general idiocy. Above that, unconsciousness, death and pissing all over yourself become disturbingly real possibilities. The sweet spot is probably around .03-.06%, which will provide mild euphoria and decreased inhibitions, while only screwing over your ability to concentrate.

The human body processes alcohol at close to a fixed rate of 50mL/hour, due to a bottle neck in the process of converting alcohol to its metabolites in the liver. This implies, for your blood alcohol level, that every 40 minutes, you'll lose .01% BAC - which for a 150lb person is results in a "sustainer" dose of 1 drink every 2 hours after reaching your ideal point.

If you should find yourself having drunk too much, a few notes on your nausea. If you feel like you're going to vomit, you're probably going to be ready to vomit in 40 seconds. You can't really suppress your body's desire to rid yourself of poison completely, so get to a place where you won't make a mess and let rip. If you can't bring yourself to vomit because you haven't anything in your gut, add filler stuff - say a slice of bread and some water. Having these inside lets you work up the proper puking pressure.

A few warnings, of course. Drugs are cool, and cool people do drugs - but they don't make you cool. If you're a raging asshole, on alcohol you're just going to be a drunk raging asshole. Do not be that guy. Do not drink more than you're comfy with. Even if you aren't drinking, don't be the guy who takes advantage of people in this state - either by harming or robbing them. Alcohol is a vasodilator - it opens up your blood vessels in your skin just like you were warm, but does not contribute to your body heat production - so keep that jacket on. If you're a minor, sorry, please try again next year. Don't drink on campus, and if you do violate this edict, don't mess up campus with your refuse. Be a pleasant drunk - helpful, if a bit clumsy.☺

The real question is whether or not this is too drunk, or perfectly drunk... perhaps we shall see in the morning.
