The Facts: Fisher Hall

By Liz Fujita ~ Daily Bull

Dear President Mroz: Why is school so hard? It makes my head hurt sometimes. Well, to be more precise, it makes my head hurt all the time. I frequently feel reduced to internet-level stupidity and want only to cry, "SCHOOL! Y U NO EASIER?" Can we do something about this? Best regards, Liz.

I've learned a lot so far this year, loyal readers. Most of it has been from books and lectures, but the most important things I have learned came from outside of class. Note, I didn't say "outside of the classroom." I refrained from saying that because - unlike the fortunate few freshmen who haven't yet been inundated with MOUNTAINS of HEAPS of COLLOSAL AMOUNTS of SHIT TO DO - I very rarely leave the academic buildings. More specifically, I almost never leave Fisher Hall.

Everyone has that building. For some, it's the Chem Sci labs. Others spend long...see Fisher Gnomes on back

Time-out leads to 911 Call

By Jeremy Mr. Sunshine Loucks ~ Daily Bull

San Francisco, CA: In what some around the country are calling an appalling use of judgment, police were called to a local elementary school after a kindergarten called 911 in response to a teacher's punishment. Ima Weener, age 6, was finger-painting with the other students when she decided that Jenny Wernstrom's dress needed a bit more color, so she smeared yellow and orange all over her classmate's clothing. This of course didn't sit well with Jenny, who felt the dress was great just the way it was, so she smeared green all over Ima's pants.

Ima says that she did nothing wrong. After all, she wants to become a fashionista.

This led to yelling and screaming, a bit of crying, and caused the teacher, one Mike Rotch, to step in. Mike calmly told the girls to stop fighting and clean themselves up. When Ima refused, he apparently stated, "Ima, you've been a bad girl. You need a timeout in the corner to think about what you've done." Ima then pulled out her cell phone (seriously, what kindergarten doesn't have one these days?) and called 911, saying that her teacher had berated and threatened her and that she was in mortal danger.

When the police, firemen, paramedics, three ring circus, and TV crews arrived however, they found Ima sulking in the corner and the rest of the class peacefully asleep for naptime. After a quick interview with the teacher, the principal, and Ima, they realized how ridiculous this whole thing was and packed up. However, due to an obscure subsection of the school code of conduct, the teacher had to be suspended with pay, but unfortunately without his special "teachers only" discount at the local stores and bars.

Ima's parents, furious that the school and police didn't go further to punish the teacher, have filed a lawsuit against...see Spoiled on back nights haunting the eleventh floor of the MEEM. Then there are those of us who take residence in Fisher. In fact, it's almost guaranteed that a small Liz sapling has started growing in room 133. Spending so much time in our beloved Fisher Hall has led me to the discovery of some very interesting things.

First of all, the bathrooms on the second floor have chronically derptastic toilets. Some you pull up on to flush, others you push. Some you have to wrench at a 45-degree angle, but only on Wednesdays. Once you eventually escape the stall and go to wash your hands, you're greeted by the one sink with a perma-drip and its otherwise normal cousins. Drip. Drip. Drip.

Secondly, there are mystical winding tunnels in the basement that you never knew about. They lead to the rabbit hole. Additionally, there is a strange midget-door in the foyer between Fisher and Rekhi's garden level. What's in there? It doesn't go anywhere. There are probably deep, dark Tech secrets stashed in there... like a shrine to John MacInnes or the burial grounds of the EERC tree.

Next! Did you know that the cleaning crew comes through at 5:30 am? Neither did I. Then, one morning I was mid-paper and SURPRISE! "Uh, ma'am, would you mind leaving here so we can clean?" NO SIR I CANNOT DO THAT. Those rooms contain the residues of genius, and I need to leech them! You think class ends when your professor stops talking, but no – the mists of their knowledge seep into the walls. Smartness collects there. All you have to do its tap into it.

The rightmost vending machine is broken, just so you all know. It slides around, finds and delivers your drink, then goes around and tries to get a second one. You're not allowed to reach into the little door to get your beverage until it has completed its second lap, though. It's a gigantic time-waster, and when you're done it doesn't even say goodbye nicely! Rather, it hurls your change at you, causing them to scatter about the floor for scavengers like me to find when we're hungry at 3:30 in the morning.

Lastly, the most important thing I have learned about Fisher Hall is that there are Unfortunately, my seemingly infinite experience with Fisher doesn't extend back to the times before Rekhi. Nor do I own a sweet, old car. But at least one thing is eternal: math geeks.

the teacher, the school, the county, the police, and the Westboro Baptist church. They allege that Ima is now suffering from anxiety, paranoia, AIDS, and post traumatic stress disorder. "Whenever we're in the store and she sees paint, she throws a tantrum!" said Ima's exasperated mother, Alice Weiner. "This inconsiderate oaf of a teacher must be punished for what he did to my darling daughter!"

The school district refused to comment on the situation, citing the need to protect the incredible stupidity of the Weiner family. Mr. Rotch gave us this statement: "Seriously? I mean, aren't they taking this just a tad bit far for something so minor? "

Meanwhile, the corpse of Johnny Cochran rolled over in his grave. Authorities are at a loss as to why. 🐾
