are created. He said they have been around since his dad told him, I think he meant he doesn't know.

However, now there is another reason for kids and the CIA to worry about. It is called Zombaliens. They are a mixed-breed of Zombies, who migrated to Alien planets. According to the latest findings, it has been found that the CIA is still trying to find the new findings which led to such an incident. But one guy, who seemed quite knowledgeable, told me that in the 80's some zombies in the US went to the planet X31B5 where they married aliens and created an ugly and intelligent breed of Zombaliens who are as powerful as aliens and as ugly as zombies. The guy looked kind of Chinese but strangely had an Indian accent.

The US government has canceled the entire recent census data collected from zombies. The government is preparing a new form which will have another race in it. The zombie community has welcomed the step and is hoping that now onwards people wouldn't label them as dumb. Aliens who have their in-laws on earth as asking for permanent residency in the US, but the US government has already put strict restrictions on H1-B visa for existing skilled people that they seem to have slim chances of getting it.

Some environmentalists and human organizations have started campaigns to finish the long war between Zombies, aliens and humans. They have urged every one of us to live together in peace and harmony. However, some conservatives are having apprehensions of another breed which has a creepy name- Humazombalien, which means %#@^ sheet. 🐼

ey? What are they going to take, the money I don't have? Yep. And guess what that led to? Overdrawing, which led straight to another fee. You'd think there'd be a way to get an email or some sort of notification when this happens, but if there is I haven't found it. First I was broke, then I got charged money I didn't have, then I got charged for an overdraft as a result of the first fee, on both checking and savings. A sequence of fees adding up to something like $40, a ruthless scheme undoubtedly planned out by bank executives with the sole intention of harvesting mercilessly from the little guy. Talk about getting kicked while you're down. Some'll say "Well, you should've read the rules." Probably,

but you can't tell me this is a fair situation.

Thankfully, I've found that if you go into the bank, take up their time, act like you don't know what's going on, and maybe even get a little frustrated, it's clear the bank tellers are air-headed enough to just waive it all. Maybe they're instructed to do so, but it feels like a small victory against a corporate giant.

Small credit to Wells Fargo though, they're a lot less full of shit than Independent, my hometown bank. Those guys decided my checking account was no longer free because I hadn't used it in 3 months (undoubtedly somewhere in the fine print I skimmed 4 years ago), so they charged an inactivity fee without any notification, which overdrew it, then quietly charged me $5/day for said overdraft. I never use that account, so it went on until my mom read my statement and called me. Embarrassing. That one I actually had to get mad about, and I felt a little bad for the poor Indian girl on the other end of the phone...

Anyway, moral of the story is you've got more power over your bank than you think. Do anything to finagle your way out of fees, because it IS possible, and you know they don't have any shame screwing with your hard-borrowed money. =) 🐼
