New "You Wrong, I Right" Club

By Kyle Roe ~ Daily Bull
This new semester brings in new students and different classes; the semester also brings to the school some new student clubs. One of those clubs is the "Forcing Others to Realize that Their Beliefs and Ideas are Wrong, and Your Beliefs and Ideas about Them are Right" Club. The FORTTBIAWYBIATAR Club for short. This club helps give students the confidence to tell the people they don't like, that they are wrong. "We started this club with one simple idea in mind; to finally give people like Suzie (a member of the MTU Cheerleading Squad) the confidence to tell Autumn (a liberal arts student) that she is a tree hugging, zit faced, doped up snow cow," said the club's president, John McCain (no relation).

Members of this club have already helped make many people of Houghton and other towns in Michigan realize that

Match Making (India)

By Jodhbir Singh ~ Daily Bull

If you are graduating then you should login to linkedin.com, moster.com, or various other job search sites. However, if you want to get married which sites should you log into? A friend of mine who has a premium account of shaadi.com (Shaadi is a Hindi word for marriage), suggested me to try it. I am yet not prepared to get married but the culture of arranged-marriage in India is very daunting to me. Creating a profile on shaadi.com is free, so I gave it a shot. We filled in lot of information about me, though most of it was fake. However, one mistake I made was to put my original photo. It was the best that I have ever been caught on camera.

You can check other people's profiles, their like/dislikes, interests etc. Based on those, you can express your interest. I clicked on a good looking girl (7.5/10) and read her profile.

Following is what she wanted:

I'm looking for a jatt sikh male who is attractive, honest and hard-working. Someone who has/is working towards a good career (anything respectable would work).

Someone with modern look, and modern thinking (how you carry yourself means the most to me in terms of good looks). Also, someone who is ready for the commitment.

Even though her expectations were high, I decided to express my interest in her: it's free. So, that night we they are stupid, self centered peace lovers. One good example was when club members helped a rich, plump white man come to terms with why he was a member of the Republican Party. "I had always assumed that I was a part of this party because of my similar ideals and beliefs. However, these great students helped me realize it was because I am rich, white, and morbidly obese," we were told by a participant in the clubs outreach program. We were not able to talk to him long, as he had received an important phone call on his blackberry, which we can assume was about ether Tax Cuts, Tea Partying, or Rainbow Burning.

So far the club's outreach has proven itself to be a great success. "One of our freshman members helped a homeless man recognize that society was to blame for him being homeless. It was not that he is an alcoholic, used to beat his wife, molested three neighbor kids, and never could hold a job." McCain explained, "I was surprised at the initiative that this freshman brought to our club. That homeless man now blames society, and no longer blames his own actions."

Even though everyone is welcome to join the FORTTBIAWYBIATAR Club, they would rather have people who are soulless douche bags, including gingers, in their club; because they have been known to shun and ridicule any uncool student that joined. Of course, if the "Forcing Others to Realize that Their Beliefs and Ideas are Wrong, and Your Beliefs and Ideas about Them are Right" Club is not what you are looking for this semester, many other new clubs are available. Including the "Pretend we are Doing Something Club-like so we can Get Free Beer Money" Club. The "I am Better than You in Every Single Way, and Together with My Friends Who are Also Better Than You, We will be Asses to You" Club. And the "Pile of Lode" Club, which takes out of date news stories, crinkles it up into giant wads of paper and throws them at unsuspecting and innocent students walking to class.

Meanwhile, in Albany...

From the immortal Nathan "Invincible" Miller

Are you tired of classes already? Looking for a little bit of entertainment during the drudgery of reading syllabuses? Then look no further my frazzled friend, for I have just the ticket for you! Head on over to wcd-bfm.com and you'll find a special treat, just for you and anybody else who happens to have an internet connection.

"What sort of treat!?" you may be wondering. Only the greatest of aural delights you could possibly lay your ears on: 36 hours straight of me on the radio. Ridiculous? Yes. True? Also yes, I hope. Unless you're reading this before the Bull has even been distro'd for the day, I've been jamming the tunes since 8 AM this morning, and plan to continue on until 8 PM Wednesday night. Hurry over before you miss another amazing tune! WMTU isn't on-air yet, so don't feel bad that you're letting the home team down. They're probably rooting for me anyway. It's not a world record or anything, but when you think about it, how many things have you done for 36 hours straight? Other than breathing and staying awake, and possibly brain function, I haven't gotten close. I'll be on all day, night, and day again, so feel free to call in and heckle me on the WCDB hotline: (518) 442-4242. Get to it!

expressed our interest in 24 girls. I was feeling like I had been put on a stage, and there are ladies on the chairs who will flash their HOT/NOT cards. Interestingly, my friends were more confident than me of getting acceptances for me. So, next day we logged on to the site again to see if we had got the balls rolling. It read:

Dear j9001(my ID)

bibikuri87 has declined your interest.

She says: "Hello, Thanks for expressing interest in my profile. I may not be suitable match for you. Wish you good luck in your partner search. Best Regards, bibikuri87."

The END

Well, just before that I have had a very good day. Even though we knew from the very start that it was going to be for fun only, getting rejected for fun is not fun. Some friends encouraged changing profile; others suggested putting a better photo. However, a friend suggested writing it for the Bull so that when it comes to matchmaking others do not take 'fun' just for fun. After this discouraging experience I killed myself.
