Long Distance Relationship to the Next Level

By Kyle Roe ~ Daily Bull ~

Grad Student Alana Konieczny is due to break the record of long distance relationships as she leaves her boyfriend behind in Houghton to fly to the moon. Along with three other Michigan Tech Grad Students, Alana will be traveling with NASA to help build the first self sustained ecosystem on the moon. "I know it will be the adventure of my life," Kenieczny told the Bull last week, "but I can't get over the fact that I will not see Josh for a whole month!"

Unlike the other Grad Students in the program, Alana shows little interest in the actual program. While the other three pack essentials and work on developing ways to bring live plants to the moon, Alana has been using her time before launch

F 4 Critiques

by William Lytle - Daily Bull

Hello Daily Bull Faithful Fans,

Noting a void in campus critiques has drawn me to the Daily Bull. I hope to raise my pen (crayon) on a semi-regular basis to give you the latest on the topics of Food, Fashion, Film, and Fine Arts here at our Husky school. I do not intend to offend, but rather to entertain, and maybe get my big break. Anything in the following column resembling talent or expertise is purely coincidental.

Enjoy.

The Russian National Ballet coming to Houghton!?! There was just no way to resist. Over 700 patrons packed into the Rozsa last Wednesday to witness a graceful centerpiece of international culture. The communities upper crust, donning camo caps and toting spitter cups, filtered into the theatre, found their mismatched plum upholstered seats, (somehow dismissed the creepy purple stalactites resembling the Bat Cave) and rested their gaze on the main stage. It was adorned with flowing white dresses and appropriate period backdrops.

The CD begins to play, surprisingly without skipping, and the dancers elevate themselves onto their tippy toes. A murmur passes through the crowd

"All too soon, the ballerinas begin moving about the small space allotted them."

Broomball is in full swing!
Just don't get swept out there, k?

as they realize that they could not perform this effortless-in-appearance task. All too soon, the ballerinas begin moving about the small space allotted them. Their images, proud and poised, could not drown out the creaking and tapping of their point shoes on the Rozsa's plastic floor panels.

In half an hour, we were released for intermission. The first half of the show had been short but sweet, Tchaikovsky's something or other. The bell dinged, and the audience returned to its seats, ready to be regaled by Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. I was confused because I thought the first half of the show was an abstract Romeo and Juliet that I had been struggling to analyze. When the lights came up in the second, I knew I had been mistaken (the flamboyant pantaloons and razor sharp rapiers tipped me off) and I knew that I still had a thirst for ballet. 40 minutes later, I was unquenched.

In short, it was short. The jumps were stunted due to the size of the stage, I barely had time to fall asleep, and the talent and synchronization of the performers never climaxed to capture my approval. "It's not the size, it's how you use it." Well, I wish they had used it somewhere else, as my light wallet ached to support some sort of legitimate art. A standing ovation none the less (I was standing to leave); not a bad experience, not a breathtaking ballet. The cold war is over, and Russia is apparently dismantling its National Ballet along with its missiles. 🐻 to get as many pictures of her with her boyfriend that she can and develop a way to get Facebook on the moon. "I love Josh Peters with all my heart and I can't stand the thought not seeing him for a whole month! This will be the worst month of my life." Alana cried as she boarded the shuttle. "None of my friends will ever understand this pain, and Michigan Tech is to blame for sending me so far away."

NASA and the Grad Students will use their month on the moon to research extended living in space. Their final goal is to develop ways to use plants on the moon to make it possible to live indefinitely there. Each Grad Student has been given an individual project for the month, ranging from water recycling to genetically engineering plants that release more oxygen. When asked what she would be doing for the month, Alana had this to say; "Well every day I will wake up and use the only phone on the station for 3 hours straight. To call Josh of course. Then every night, I will call him again and tell him to look up to the moon to see me. I made him buy an expensive telescope with his collage loan."

Alana also told us that during the day she would use the 3 million dollar space computer to post on Facebook, play on Farmville, and of course Poke her boyfriend every time Facebook does not say "Josh has not received your last poke yet. He'll get it the next time he logs in."

Once we finally noticed Alana's concern of leaving Josh for a month, we decided it was best to also get Josh's opinion on the subject. We found him in the library studying under a large pile of books and printed out articles. "It's all good," Josh Peters told us when we asked if he was as stressed as Alana was. Even though Josh did not seem as concerned as his girlfriend, Michigan Tech Student Affairs showed an unexpected concern about her leave. Apparently by leaving Michigan Tech, Alana will cause the demographics to drop below the Equal Opportunity standards. Students also fear that if another girl leaves the halls will return to the smell of Axe and musky rooms. 🐻

A New _____ Brought to you by Alec Hamer

A new _____ (noun1) has been discovered. Many are excited to _____ (verb1) this new _____ (same noun1), but very little is know about it. Some want to _____ (verb2) their _____ (body part1) in the _____ (noun2). Although it may seem fun to _____ (verb3) the _____ (noun1), it seems rather dangerous, as _____ (something bad) can occur. What a terrible way to die, everyone knowing you _____ (-ed verb) a _____ (noun3) to death. So, it has been advised by the FDA that any _____ (noun4) involving _____ (noun1) must first _____ (verb4). It must also be known that action by Congress to prevent _____ (-ing verb) is being taken. No one wants to see _____ (person) putting his/her _____ (body part2) in the _____ (noun5). 🐻
