Bacon Flavored Lubricant Pulled Out of Stores

By Olivia Zajac ~ Daily Bull

In a case that can only be described as terrifyingly tasty, TastySlide, a new company in the adult entertainment business, has already pulled their first product off of shelves of sex stores across the country. The thought behind the particular product was well intentioned, but they did not realize the massive success, and enthusiastic use, of this line. TastySlide produces a variety of flavored and extra sensation lubricants that are safe for use with latex condoms and actually taste nearly identical to the food item each tube of lube is named for. "We started out safe, with fruits like strawberry, kiwi, watermelon, the likes. It crossed our minds that maybe making sets of flavored lubricants aimed at different types of meals came to mind. So for the dinner set, there would Sealand Acquires Nuclear Weapons.

By BIG O ~ Daily Bull

SEALAND, NEAR ENGLAND. The super tiny minute micro nation of Sealand has come to power in the world stage with its acquisition of nuclear weapons. The leader of the nation of 3 sovereigns has said that they have since acquired a nuclear weapon by using their underwater research facility. The facility, it is purported, is crude, and some are debating the power of the nuclear weapon.

The United States has weighed in on the situation, saying that Sealand is now a threat to the world with its nuclear weapons. The nation had, until this point, been mostly a pirate nation, and by that, we mean they've been hosting servers on their 'sovereign' soil, even though it's neither sovereign, nor has any soil. The micro nation is not recognized on the world stage, even though it has been requesting representation from the UN for years - which, of course, brings up an interesting set of possibilities.

If the US decides to invade Sealand, than it would be invading British soil, which of course would be an act of war. This could bring up a host of anecdotal evidence and commentary from persons not happy with the US, and justify varying degrees of violence. On the other hand, if Sealand goes crazy, it could attack Britain or any of the nearby nations if it had some way to deliver the bomb. Britain is requesting support, but until the nation is recognized by the international stage, then it cannot be invaded. Indeed, a situation is brewing. We at the Daily Bull have attempted to contact the officials of Sealand, and got an interview.

"You see, we're just a bunch of trolls. If you look at our history, we've just been trolls everyday. Even with our civil war. And recently we've been hosting piracy servers that hold all the data you need to torrent with our sovereignty. Now, we have a nuke. So, in total, we have land, a self defense, and an economy. Obviously we should be a nation! Look at us world! We can do it!"

Officials at the UN are delegating now about how to handle the nuclear weapon issue with the sea fort micro nation of Sealand. Many are saying just give them representation, while some others are demanding that they be re-absorbed into Britain, and others still request that they just be ignored and let them play pretend. ☹ be steak, salad, and maybe a red wine flavored. This flopped. Lunch wasn't much of a hit either. But breakfast became a hit, particularly, the pack that included the bacon-flavored lubricant. It was a hickory smoked variety we chose, and they flew off the shelves."

While with all good intentions at heart, TastySlide was sued by a couple that wish to remain anonymous. We will call them, Jack and Jill. Jack had this to say, "Well, Jill is a vegetarian, and has never had bacon before because of that whole 'killing cute animals' thing. I saw this when I was at the Wal*mart, and thought she might like to try, y'know, my bacon. So I get this stuff and we're getting all hot and heavy, and she starts to, y'know, work her magic, and everything is going just great! Then I felt the most horrid pain I've ever felt in my life," he paused here and shuttered, his hands shifting down to cover his crotch. "She...she said she loved the taste of that bacon and she just couldn't control herself and she...she...she fucking bit my dick off!"

It is clear that this vegetarian had developed quite a taste for meat. "I just couldn't control myself. Something came over me, the delicate flavors of the bacon dancing over my tongue, and next thing I know Jack is yelling at me to get the fuck off my knees and call 911."

TastySlide has agreed to pay for all medical bills associated with this case, and have since stopped producing their bacon flavored lubricant, saying "No man should have to lose his penis in such a horrific manner. We've learned our lesson about making lubricants taste too good." ☹
