Beginning of Semester

By Jeanine Chmielewski ~ Daily Bull

Well, it's that time again. It's the beginning of a new semester! Isn't it GREAT? Now if you are a "normal" person on campus you hate at least some parts of your schedule, right? You have too much chemistry, or those pointless UN classes. But you know, we could get over that unfortunate fact a lot easier if it wasn't for the annoying as hell people who actually LOVE their schedule. You know who I am talking about, too.

I am talking about those lazy bums who only ever take 12 damn credits a semester and then do absolutely nothing outside of the classroom. I mean, come on, why would you do that to yourself? It will take forever to get out of college that way. Ok, we all know broomball is AWESOME but after six years it just isn't worth it anymore.

And then there are the REALLY insane people. The ones who take 18 credits, play on 2 broomball teams, are in a fraternity, are a teaching assistant, are doing research/co-op, tutors someone for something and is in at least 3 more clubs or groups on campus. And you know what really gets to us is that these assholes actually manage to get 7 full hours of sleep a NIGHT! I mean what the hell, then they go around glowing about how they have 6 hours of a single subject strait and that they look forward to their 3 hour lab (on a different day). How do these people manage to survive? These people actually managed to get the full triangle. Sleep, school, AND social life. These Jedi masters must be clones, robots, or aliens or something because they can't be human.

Whatever the case may be, these people, the crazy insane people with the schedule from hell, and the lazy bums who don't do a damn thing all

Cooking with Ruben

By Ruben Garcia ~ Daily Bull

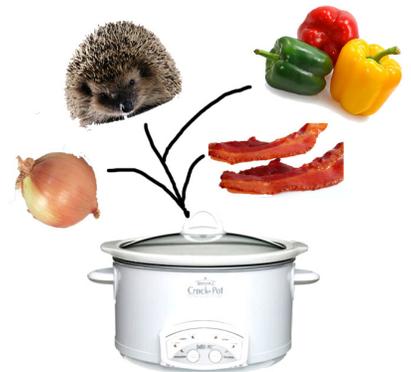

Why hello there dear readers! Welcome to the first installment of Cooking with Ruben! Today, I will be teaching you how to make things with a food processor! Does that sound just lovely?

Now, the first dish we will be making will be porcupine salsa. The first ingredient would be a fresh porcupine. If you don't have one handy, you can substitute it with a hedgehog, if you can catch the fuckers. Anyway, we put the little critter into the processor and a-blending we go. Now, it is important to use a pulsing stop-and-go method, to make sure the bones get nice and mushy. Afterward, we add a couple of cacti and pinecones to really get the crunch. Lastly, add some glass for flavor and serve in a festive bowl. If you don't have a festive bowl, go buy one you troglodyte.

Now, this concoction is from the cookbook "650 Best Food Processor Recipes." Its sister book, "The 650 Worst Food Processor Recipes" has its own fair share of deciduous food. This one is called the Yooper meatloaf. Firstly, go and find the oldest road-kill that still has meat. Put this in the food processor with at least 4 different kinds of dog poop. Blend until you pass out from the stench. If you don't pass out, then keep adding different types of dog poo. After this is blended into paste, find a deer carcass and drizzle the paste over the deer and put it into the oven. Bake at approximately 400 degrees Celsius for 4 hours. Take out of the oven and let cool. The sauce will thicken. Will serve 5 willing people, 10 unwilling.

In case you cannot afford the food processor, the easiest kitchen cooking utensil would be the crock-pot. Simply add anything you want into the crock-pot, wait 5-8 hours and a feast appears. Also, magic. 🧙

Occupy Congress Group Losing Steam

By Alec Hamer ~ Daily Bull

Occupy Congress, a group opposed to the SOPA/PIPA bills is having trouble occupying Congress. According to Jon Boehner, members of the overly excited opposition group can “suck it,” adding “look, this is the congressional hall for The United States of America. I love this country and if you have a problem with that then damn you! Damn you all to hell!” That is when the tears start for Boehner causing him to pause before mumbling something about needing to use the bathroom.

It is not certain what Boehner was crying over but Newt Gingrich decided to weigh in with “...

SQUEAK SQUEAK SQUEAK SQUEAK SQUEAK. My fellow cheese loving Americans, SQUEAK SQUEAK SQUEAK SQUEAK.” From what he has said, it is clear that the former speaker of the house has lost touch with the American public (especially topics concerning such controversial topics as cheese subsidies and liquorish accounts. In either case, whenever Gingrich is not campaigning or on holiday he can be found sleeping in the House of Representatives.

According to Representative John Larson: “Yeah many people don’t know that the House of Representatives is actually the house where we all stay. We don’t want anyone to “occupy” where we live.” He further noted: “It’s one hell of a time.. think of an Animal House with power. One time James Clyburn drank a whole case by himself. I’ve NEVER seen a fellow American puke so much in my life.”

According to many reports, the representatives stay in dormitory-style rooms without windows. “We wlit in the sun” Representative John Larson wrote in his blog Caucus Ain’t No Cactus, adding “Have you ever smoked a cigarette in the dark? When it is also incredibly humid? Yeah, that’s kind of what it’s like. Only stinkier and more humid.”

Unfortunately, it seems as though the Occupiers may soon win a victory that will send many Representatives out of work and home, and to work in the private sector. Oh crap... ☹

...from 2 Weeks Late on front

day always manage to ruin the first bit of every semester. Well not this time! So, my advice to you, oh diligent readers is to ignore them, shove them down a hole, check ‘em into the boards, blow them up with liquid nitrogen (if you succeed you get a cookie). Be creative! Do anything that makes you feel better about yourself. And remember, HAVE FUN!

Prepare yourselves once more young freshmens!
