I Will Park My Car on Your FACE.

by Kay McMahon ~ Daily Bull

As if it wasn't already bad enough to locate any kind of tangible parking in Houghton MI, the snowy weather assists you in making our own parking spaces; giving MTU just one more thing to fine us for.

Recently I was in the labs doing some online quiz that only took around ten minutes. I buzzed through it and went out to my car to race to my broomball game, when lo and behold -- a twenty five dollar parking ticket sat spitefully on my windshield.

Dually noted. Campus police sat across the road. In my rear view mirror I looked and thought of all the possible things I could do or say to get out of this ticket. I thought of all the ways I could tell the cop that the side of the road wasn't a park space either and that I had a timed quiz and was in a hurry. In my hurried stupor I decided I just needed to go play broomball and think on this vicious topic another time.

Until now, I forgot about the ticket. As I am sitting in the lab listening to the commuters bitch about commuter parking I am beginning to feel the rage come over me. Do you know what twenty five dollars means to a college student? That's twenty five sandwiches at Happy Donalds! That's the fee to play broomball, or watch two shows at the Rosza center. That's two MTU hookers on a Friday night, and around eight movies in Fisher. And, hey, what do they do with all those twenty five dollar tickets? They should add them up and make us another parking lot to park our cars in. [Editor's note: OR INVEST IN HOVER TRAMS FROM HANCOCK TO CAMPUS, JUST A SUGGESTION THOUGH.]

As I think back to that day, when looking back at the man who allotted me a twenty five dollar fine for a ten minute park job... considering all the illegal thoughts running through my head then, I wish I would have said it: "Maybe women would be better at parking cars and not hitting things if they weren't constantly being lied to about what eight inches is." 🐮
