The Daily Bull is probably not suitable for those under age 18 and should not be taken seriously... like the road to playoffs!

Hobo with a Shotgun Review

Kay McMahan ~ Daily Bull.

In high school being late for class meant an unexcused absence. In college we are apparently 'accountable' for our own attendance, mostly. Thus meaning, if we're five minutes late means it's worthless to go to class. That's the Tech mentality. A beautiful mentality, I might add. Or, if you're already five-to-ten minutes late then you might-as-well stop and get coffee or a monster and go to class 20 minutes late because at least you're making a visible effort.

These same teachers commend us for our efforts. They are also more commonly the ones 'posting the slides on blackboard'. Well, don't mind if we just don't come to class at all, ever! And on that note, see you at finals dickhead.

When a Tech student wakes up for class the biggest deciding factor is looking outside

Dear Bar-Hopping Me,

By Olivia Zajac ~ Daily Bull

You really need to stop implying that the scar above your eye is from getting in a knife fight in high school, and that you really fucked the other person up. If you remember correctly, you hit yourself in the face with your car door, like a moron. You aren't from actual Detroit. You are from Downriver, which in and of itself is a little sad, and probably closer to Ohio than Detroit. You also then don't need to tell everyone that you aren't carrying a knife on you because you'd have nowhere to hide it. That just makes your lovely friends imply you're smuggling one in places knives shouldn't go.

You should also stop going places by yourself. Yes, I get it, Houghton is a safe place, but really. Going to the club where you should know people that are there doesn't mean you will either find them, be there at the same time as them, or be at the same level of drunk as them. This is why you got propositioned for sex and some guy shorter than you tried to lead you to the bathroom before you just laughed in his face and walked away. Come on, Bar-Hopping Me! You're better than that!

This is how I walk drunk! And never will I have ankles again!

And another thing! PBR? Really? I mean, I know it's free beer, and who turns down free beer, but let's be serious. Boxer beer was free that one night, and you weren't happy the next day. You are allowed to not drink all the beer thrown at you. You have to draw the beer line somewhere, Bar-Hopping Me, and I'm gonna have to draw it somewhere near PBR (because it wasn't really bad, but not a first choice).

Wandering off with strangers is still a bad thing. I know I mentioned that whole "you aren't really from Detroit" but damnit, close enough! You've been to Detroit enough at night to know bet-

... Hobo with BOOMSTICK from front right away, if it looks like a frozen waste land of death then chances are they're not going to class. But here at Tech we know by now: if your teacher actually does take attendance that the weather isn't a valid excuse, is not as valid as "senior design meeting ran late". And as a first year I personally want to kick that excuse in the dick.

Then there's parking. Why would I go to class if I KNOW no matter where the fuck I park I'm going to get a ticket? Not that we ever actually pay them but that little pink piece of paper pisses us off and they know it. But ticketing isn't the only parking dilemma and everyone knows it. Where the FUCK will we park? Don't mind if we park in Tibet and bicycle to class every morning to try and make it in time for that last five minutes of class when you can't hear anything but the shuffling of zipping backpacks and hurried students.

I found what works most for me personally is obviously the 'buddy system'. If they don't take attendance you just buddy up with someone and divvy out the days of the week. So when exam time comes you just stop, collaborate, and listen. (Just dropped vanilla ice lyrics like a badass). 🐮

ter. "Oh hi random guy I just met tonight that is friends with someone I knew Freshman year. Let's go for a walk and no one knows where I am or that I'm not in my house. Sounds safe! I'll even give you a ride home for the price of not murdering me!" Okay, so it turns out he's friends with some of your good friends and he's actually a good guy, but come on. STOP. DOING. THAT.

Basically, Bar-Hopping Me, I'm asking you to use a little common sense. So nothing bad actually happened, you only paid for like, three drinks between Friday and Saturday night, you had awesome times with friends and met some cute guys and shit. That doesn't give you the right to act like a derp. Well. Maybe it kind of does, but just keep it in line. We don't need any repeats of what you like to call "Life Lessons", and I call "blacking out and doing stupid shit".

With love and growing concern,
Sober Me

P.S Thank you for turning down that tequila. I'm glad your escapades have at least taught you that much. It would have made your insides feel sad. 🐮
