Zombie Cat Army Heralds New Dictator

By Daio ~ Daily Bull

With the breakout of the great ground epidemic of 2012, many people were already expecting something big was going to happen on campus. There were rumblings and tumblings, and only hands could satisfy them. And unfortunately, those hands satisfied them in the 11th floor of the MEEM.

It all started in spring with the beginning of the cat dissections in the anatomy class. "We've used cats because they're easier for us to get, and there's more of them available. It doesn't make sense to use actual cadavers, since if one has destroyed internal organs, it's impossible to learn off of them. Besides, some of the more immature students might enjoy playing with the dead bodies too much, if you get what I mean," said an unnamed Lab TA for the Anatomy and Physiology lab.

Unfortunately, this did not protect the students of the anatomy lab from the dire circumstances to come. As of 2 pm Monday, all the cats were missing. Initial reports speculated that the cats were stolen by students to prevent any more dissection

"It was gross! Some of the cats were rotting in those bags. And the formaldehyde just made it smell all the worse. I'm glad those cats are gone."

However, all across campus, the shredded bags of their previous containers were found. On Tuesday at 3pm, there was found a body with a missing neck. With the neck gone, the cats were free to carve whatever they wanted. On the back of the victim, 3 letters were carved : BBO.

Until the most recent attack, nobody had understood the carving. But with the election of the newest SUPREME EVIL DICATOR (THE THIRD), the cats carved another message much more clearly: BEWARE OF BIG O

Many are wondering what the meaning of this could be. Could the world be coming to an end with the Big O taking over the Daily Bull. Does this spell the end of the campus and the organization as we see it? We interviewed the Big O ourselves.

"Well I don't think it will be the end. It will certainly be interesting. I Standathon: Can you handle it?

by Ryan Proulx ~ Loyal Bull Fan

(Note: SATIRE. Please don't take seriously!)

So every year I always get asked the question: What is Standathon? Who would ever just stand around for 12 hours doing nothing?

To these questions I always hang my head in disbelief, as I can never understand how they have not yet heard about what happens at this almost paranormal festival that Tech students observe each year. So I will here lay out a few of the things that YOU can look forward to experiencing at Standathon, as well as a few things to look out for (Careful, your life could depend on it!)

The first thing I'll address is the questions, "How will you make sure that no one sits down? You can't control people!" To address these issues, those who help make Standathon happen each year have come up with a rather elegant solution: They went right to the source and addressed the issue ahead of time. Of course, I'm talking about them making an agreement directly with PHYSICS. By performing the correct rituals, a pact is formed for those 12 hours that as soon as anyone enters the SDC that night, is unable to sit or fall down. Remember how just hope that I can leave the Bull as good or better than the way I got it. Of course, there will be copious amounts of O and Bey, but that's to be expected. That's my right and my job as the Supreme Evil Dictator isn't it? MUA-HAHAHAHAHHAA oh.... Uh, sorry, sometimes my evil overlord comes out and you know...." The reporter was never heard from again, and only his transcript was found, with blood on it.

First a ground outbreak, now a cat zombie outbreak, and Big O is now EIC of the Daily Bull. Can Michigan Tech survive? We'll keep you informed! As a side note, please do not pet any stray cats you see. 🐾 weebles wobble but they don't fall down? YOU are now the weeble wobbling, unable to fall down! It's quite a site to see, someone gets knocked over and springs right back up, maybe getting within a few inches of the floor but not actually touching it. And to make sure no discrimination takes place, wheelchairs are immediately transmuted into segways with leg braces, and crutches are turned into stilts!

Now I'm sure many of you have seen the posters around, and I will now shed some light on some of these events! First, be careful of Gladiator Jousting. Yup, it's real jousting, you're not beaten until you fall down. Wouldn't be a problem, EXCEPT! You can't fall down! Every year there end up being a fair number of corpses that just are eerily suspended until the end of the night. Enter at your own risk, and remember that hospital and funeral bills are not covered by anyone but you!

Next up is Life-Sized Board Games. Now, there isn't enough room for ALL of those games where this is going on, so how do they make that work? The answer: You shrink until they ARE life-sized! Be careful of the game Mousetrap, you might not get out!

Then there are the video games. An event does occur that some gamers have always dreamed of: You are sucked into the game! And yes, you will follow game rules, so you won't actually die, but there is a danger of a power cord coming out and you being lost forever!

The last thing to be careful of: The "Kindle Fire" is actually a Kindle on Fire! If you win it, you must quickly put it out, and extinguisher fees are not included with the prize.

To be continued tomorrow..... 🐾
