Fire in the Library

By Sam Schall ~ Daily Bull

On Friday, we all witnessed a horrible tragedy when fire broke out in the library. Fire trucks raced to put out the flames of the inferno as it took over the first floor's books near the cafe before it started its way up to the second and third floors. Firefighters raced inside to pull out students that had been trapped by the hot flames in the reading area of the first floor.

One student, already rescued and standing outside, soaked through from the working sprinkler system, gives us a on the scene account of what happened. "It was horrible. The fire alarm went off for a second before it all went quiet and everyone thought it was alright. But the flames ran up the stairs and someone screamed that it was real... it was so real..." the student, anonymous for respect of

UN 1002: The Culture of Carl

By Liz Fujita ~ Actually Kind of Liked That Class

By popular demand, the Daily Bull infiltrated the office of our favorite living meme, Professor Carl Blair. By only slightly less popular demand, we mostly used questions submitted by you, the readers, to make the interview neat. Hope you guys got the answers you wanted! Who would you like to see interviewed next? Let us know at bull@mtu.edu!

1. Who is your favorite superhero and why (understanding that if you say anyone besides Iron Man, the fans will cry)?

[uncontrollable laughter, then gathering self] Batman. I like his house - it's good to be rich. I haven't seen the last several movies -- my idea of Batman is the old campy TV show.

2. What is the largest amount of iron you have smelted in one go?

[laughing] The "Big Bloom," which ended up weighing 194 pounds. We broke a sledgehammer trying to get it out. The basic problem was that the operating port was only big enough by about one inch - that's how we broke the sledgehammer, trying to wrangle it out.

3. What castle or fortress represents you best?

Wow. I wish I had gotten the questions in advance! I don't know if it represents me, but my favorite one is Conway castle in Wales. It builds on itself and is in surprisingly good shape. Unfortunately, it's too far for us to visit on the Frontiers and Fortresses trip.

4. What do you think about having a broomball team named after you?

Oh, that'd be great. Uh... Blair's Bangers? Catastrophic Carl?

5. What is your favorite kind of beer?

Mmm. Dark wheat beer - maybe Dunkel Weizen.

6. Where is your favorite place to go in the Keweenaw?

I really like Brockway Mountain. Yeah, probably Brockway. The usual.

7. If you could teach any class other than the ones you teach now, what would you like to teach?

privacy, then broke down into tears and cried over the lost of many electronics lost in the fire.

"The cause of the fire is still unknown and under investigation," Fire chief Smith tells us once the flames were downed and drowned. "It seems it started in the archives, garden level of the building, but, aside from that, we still have a lot of investigation to do. Thank you."

We're told by campus administration that all library resources that were saved from the flames and then subsequent water damage have been relocated to the local Houghton library. The local library will be honoring student IDs as library cards while the library building is being rebuilt and restored and the resources damaged are replaced or repaired.

As for students' personal losses the school -

Wait, what? It was just a little fire in the archives? The library's back open already except for the archives that almost nobody uses anyway? ... Well, that's lame. ☹
