Congratulations, Mr. President!

By Cameron Long ~ Daily Bull

Well, the votes are in, everybody, and what an exciting election it was! Firstly, congratulations are in order to the (44th/45th) President of the United States, (Barack Obama/Mitt Romney)! Though it looked as though his campaign was faltering at times, he was able to sway the American voters in the end with a platform of (the other guy is dumb and won't do anything right/the other guy is dumb and hasn't done anything right).

Said the President, "It's an honor to be (re-elected/elected) as President of the American people! This is a great day for America and we will (continue to move forward/make this country strong again) over the next four years."

Depending on when you went to bed, between one and one hundred percent of

Gary Johnson WINS!

By Jon "Big O' Mahan ~ Daily Bull

You heard it here folks, but Gary Johnson has pulled of the unimaginable and actually won the office of president. We were on the ground when the news broke last night, asking people their opinions on the matter as it broke.

"What... Why are you in my house. Who the fuck is Gary Johnson. I don't even vote."

"Gyah! Why is there a flashlight in my eyes? Who the fuck are you? Who's Gary Johnson?"

Yes, yes indeed, you heard it perfectly there. Who the fuck is Gary Johnson? Apparently he's some third party Libertarian Candidate who ran for president that didn't get to show up in the debates or any of the major stations despite having a considerable backing. Despite that, Gary Johnson amazingly managed to pull in most of the southern states along with Texas, California, Nevada, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin to win it all. A truly amazing situation in America; never before has a 3rd party candidate won the presidency. America is still reeling from the shock of what went down. But we here at the Bull have an idea.

Gary Johnson managed to sell to the middle voters. You know, the ones who actually do research and give a damn. He was overwhelmingly supported by independents. Usually though, this wouldn't mean a win. But with so much of the Democratic base going "Ehh... Obama was... okay... I guess, but he didn't keep many of his promises" and so much of the Republican base going "Well, I guess he's better than McCain, kinda", the win would be easy for Gary Johnson. With nobody but those who gave a shit showing up to the polls, Gary Johnson easily won, taking the 'those who give a shit' vote 90%-5%-5%. In California, where many voters thought Obama had it in the bag, many Republicans and Democrats voted for Gary Johnson.

"Ehh, why not? After all, California is a lost cause. I mean, Mitt Romney's not going to win it, and it's already turning into a festering shithole, so my vote doesn't really count. Might as well vote for someone I like right? I never imagined it actually resulting in Gary Johnson winning though!" Said one Californian who has lost his way and apparently ended up at MTU.

It's unknown if Gary Johnson will actu-districts had reported their results and (President Obama/Governor Romney) was (slightly ahead/winning in a landslide). During periods of slow reporting, CNN and MSNBC looped footage of Obama casting his ballot, while Fox did the same for Romney. Both candidates were mum on their selections. As more and more results filtered in, (President Obama/Governor Romney) expressed cautious optimism, while (President Obama/Governor Romney) held a press conference to reassure his supporters that the cause is not yet lost and the projections have plus/minus two percent error.

Between the hours of 10PM and 2AM, (President Obama/Governor Romney) held another press conference to concede defeat. "We gave it a great shot," he said, "but America has spoken. That's the great thing about this country - the people, corporations, and media decide, not the corp- ...never mind." In closing, he lied, "My opponent ran a great campaign and I wish him all the best."

However you feel about the winner of the election, I think we can all admit one thing: the next four years would never have been boring if we'd elected Robert Downey, Jr and Scarlett Johansson.

Anyway, the deluge of ads is over and we don't have to think about politics anymore. Wait, what do you mean they're already conducting 2016 preliminary polls? IRON MAN/BLACK WIDOW 2016. 🐻 ally change something. After all, the political system is far more complex than that, and requires far more nuance than many are led to believe. In either case, after four years, something that was promised has finally happened. We finally got change we can believe in. Enjoy your new President, America! 🐻
