Rage Comics Give Positive Results

by Sam Schall ~ Daily Bull

Throughout the stupidity of the internet, there have been some ridiculous things that stick with us and give us positive feelings all round. Some are so disturbing and odd that we can't help but go look them up and see how truly true they are. Let us view today's example:

Rage comics saving a life.

It sounds as ridiculous as a man killing a bear with a stick and his bare hands, but it's just as true. Let's go back to the beginning where a man and his ex-girlfriend's forgotten pregnancy test first noticed each other, both left behind with each other and no reason to be used again. So the now girlfriend-less man decided to take the pregnancy test for shits and giggles. And guess what? It came out positive. Finding this hilarious, the man's friend

New Laws Encourage Drug Use

by Jeremy "Mr. Sunshine" Loucks ~ Daily Bull

In a stunning turn of events, voters in two states have decided to legalize marijuana for recreational use. Colorado and Washington residents decided that enough was enough, and it was time for their favorite pastime to become legal. Police across the states are rejoicing, as a major burden of enforcement is off of their backs.

Under the new laws, potheads are allowed up to 1 ounce of weed on their possession, for personal use. Pot dispensaries will also spring up, creating easy purchase through drive-thru windows. These dispensaries will be taxed, helping to create revenue for the states. Some fast food chains are also already toying with including small doses of Kush with meals, to increase sales.

The sponsor of the Washington version of the law, Mary Jane Green, was overjoyed by the news. "I mean, we're not hurting anyone or anything man. It's just...chill. Totally far-out that people went for it, now we can all celebrate and be more at peace and things. Hey, can you pass the Funyuns?"

The federal government, which still out-laws dope, is at a loss with how to deal with the potential surge in smokers. "If we ignore it, it sets a precedent that might lead to other states passing laws similar to these," said one anonymous DEA official. "We don't need a nation full of grass junkies, toking up constantly, polluting the air, eating all the food! We could soon see a food shortage in America the likes of which we've never known! The problem is, we just don't have enough agents to go in and enforce this; they're mostly busy in Mexico, warring with cocaine cartels. What are made a Rage comic about his positive pregnancy test and posted it to Reddit's always lovely and knowledgeable community. The resourcefulness of the usual internet lurkers warned the man and he was quickly advised to go to a doctor and get himself checked out for cancer, specifically of the testicles.

Come to find out, there was a mass in there. Is it a girl? Or a boy? Nope. Neither. The cancerous kind of mass, in his right ball, tiny but there. The test detects the beta human chorionic gonadotropin, a sign that a girl is preggers, but apparently is also a sign of testicular cancer in some patients. Who knew?

So, does this mean that men should start taking scheduled pregnancy tests to test for signs of testicular cancer? Would that make pregnancy tests something to be respected and researched more? Who knows, maybe the future will tell... And maybe we will get a sudden string of single men buying pregnancy tests just to pee on them and see if they have cancer too.

Hey, either way, cancer awareness. Yay! And that's always good. ☺

we supposed to do, go and arrest entire states?"

Surprisingly, some of the biggest opponents of the laws were the owners of several private prisons, whose businesses will see a drastic decline due to the vote. Many of the inmates around the country are in for drug-related crimes, and any attempts to decriminalize the herb will decrease convicts, which causes the prisons to take a serious hit to their bottom lines. However, the opposite was true with many influential hip-hop moguls, who poured millions of dollars into pro-law ads. Big Daddie G-Nizzle, a platinum artist, told the Bull, "Shiz, we def want people to make smoking the chronic legal, then we can sing about it more, and be in touch wid a bigger audience, ya dig?"

In economic news, stocks for Taco Bell, Doritos, and Hot Pockets have all gone to record highs, as the demand for their products is expected to grow exponentially in the affected states. ☺
