Scientists Flock as Mating Spectacle Begins!

By Jon "Big O' Mahan ~ Daily Bull

And So History Repeats...

by Elise Conley ~ New Blood

In an effort to return to their days of glory, approximately 20 states—most of which were members of the Confederate States of America—have petitioned the federal government to secede from the Union. Since it worked so well for them in the past, these states have officially sent petitions to the government asking to form their own "NEW" governments.

Most of the petitions submitted thus far have come from solidly conservative states, including most of the Deep South and reliably separatist Texas. All told, petitions have been filed on behalf of 20 states: Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas.

Scientists around the world are flocking to Lake Natron in Tanzania to see all the buzz regarding the Flamingo Mating Ritual. Early reports are that there have been hundreds of thousands of birds flocking to the region to begin the majestic mating dance.

However, reports are coming in that the ratio of flamingos is somewhere along the lines of the Tech Ratio. This could pose disaster for the flamingos as they attempt to mate, making competition fierce, and possibly deadly.

To make things easier on the male deficient population, the scientists, many of them locals from the UP, and familiar with the Tech Ratio have decided to help the flamingos. From dropping axe bombs, CoD and Halo paraphernalia, to teaching the flamingos how to be total douche bags, the scientists are doing everything in their power to help as many flamingos as possible.

When asked why they were interfering with nature, many scientists were hesitant to respond. We did however get one to answer our questions.

"Well, you know, having been from Tech I can see what they're going through. I just studied what worked at Tech. Be a douche, wear a ton of axe, drink, and play CoD. That seems to

Of course, the likelihood of the government granting them their new government is about the same as Tech closing for a week because of snow. However, the White House must issue a response if the petition receives 25,000 signatures within 30 days. As of Monday afternoon, the petition for the state of Texas has gained more than 25,300 signatures. That total was reached in less than three days. Congratulations, Texas. You've officially become the first state in recent memory to make a complete ass of itself. Quit whining.

Upon a close examination of all of the filed petitions, we can agree that the people who wrote them simply copied the preamble for the Declaration of Independence and titled it "Petition for a NEW Government." Many of the petitions invoke the Declaration of Independence's dramatic assertion that "Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it, and institute new Government," a phrase the writers probably googled before copying and pasting it into their petitions.

The Tea Party is practically jumping with glee at this turn of events and has requested that its supporters "fax blast all 100 Senators and 435 representatives." They seem to have forgotten that no one owns a fax machine. Email blasting will probably have the same effect as the mail the Nigerian princes keep sending you. Or the estate agents for your dead Moroccan uncle who need your bank information to send you a very large inheritance.

Upon a broad examination of the past, we discover that the South had their asses chopped off and handed to them. Unfortunately, if the number of Confederate flags I've seen is any indicator, the presence of the Confederate south is still a force to be reckoned with. None of the petitions explicitly cite Obama's reelection as a reason for independence, but all were created after last week's elections. Coincidence? I think not.

You sound like Greece wanting to separate itself from the European Union because they don't want to pay Germany back. This is why Britain should revoke your independence—you clearly can't manage yourselves. Democracy has spoken, bitches.

God Save the Queen. 🇬🇧

work at the majority of colleges too, not just Tech. I figure if it works for us, it must work for them.

A team of statisticians are already on the scene, checking out and collecting data on the flamingo mating pairs, and seeing how well the new interventions are working. This is the first significant mating event since 2007, and many scientists are hoping for it to be a success. At least here, compared to Houghton, the female flamingos are guaranteed to find themselves a mate, something that is not always guaranteed at Tech, so there's a plus for our fabulous feathered female friends. 🦩
