Student Goes Berserk Over Winter Parking

by Olivia Zajac ~ Daily Bull

Reports have been rolling in over a controversial case of a 3rd year student in the mechanical engineering department completely wrecking somewhere between 12-15 cars parked in commuter lots. Security footage shows what appeared to be a plow truck from hell pushing an entire aisle of parked cars into each other, which eventually resulted in a large fire. Owners of the vehicles were outraged. The student in question, who will remain anonymous, had this to say:

"Nothing drives me crazy more than people who don't know how to park their damn car in a lot when there is suddenly snow. I mean, come on. The lot wasn't full. There should have been room for me. But nooooooo. Since there are no visible lines, everyone just throws their hands in the air and shrug and say 'Oh well! I guess I can park like an ass waffle now!' I am sick and tired of people leaving three extra feet on either side of their car just because there is a bit of snow. You live in the U.P. Learn to park! I just couldn't take it anymore. So I whipped up the Plow-Pro, attached it to my little Taurus, and made room for myself. There was no way I was gonna go park in the overflow lot because these stupid people don't know where to put their cars. Fuck that shit."

The students whose automobiles were totaled were, as to be expected, extremely upset. When contacted for an interview, many of them failed to respond. The

by Jon "Big O" Mahan ~ Daily Bull

Lance Armstrong, the once role model of millions (Billions?) worldwide has been stripped of just about everything that he has, including his clothes, the Daily Bull reports.

Following the ICU's decision to strip him of his 7 Tour De France titles for doping, various sponsors and other persons have since stripped him of more, starting with the Olympic committee, to whom Armstrong is to return the bronze he won in Sydney in 2000. Armstrong must also return all clothes he has ever worn with a brand name on it to their branded owners. The owners have issued a statement saying that they do not wish to be associated with such a doping cheat, and hope that their good name is never associated with cheating. Despite these statements, sales and stocks of companies that Armstrong has been endorsing have begun to plummet. Left with little more than a house, a bike, and only 1 testicle, Armstrong is having problems trying to get back into society.

"I understand stripping me of my medals. I get that. But stripping me of my clothes? That's just weird. The worst part is I was terrible at managing my money so I don't have anything to buy any more than a burlap sack. And my cycling skills aren't very applicable in the real world," Armstrong said in an interview with the Daily Bull. It seems the cyclist has been looking at working at power plants and mines, hoping that he can power their lifts, or winches or some other kind of machinery so that he can have a job. So far, nobody has offered him a job.

Pic o' the Day!

Brought to you by The Daily Bull!

I'm just gonna leave this here...

Have you ever looked at your hands? I mean, REALLY looked at them?

It behooves every man to remember that the work of the critic is of altogether secondary importance, and that, in the end, progress is accomplished by the man who does things.

An example of typical winter parking. Seriously, everybody turns stupid as soon as the lines are covered.

few that made it to the scheduled appointment spent most of the time texting and saying how upset their parents would be that they'd have to buy them a new car...again. When asked if they wanted to press charges, they seem surprised. "We can do that? Sweet!"

University reps shook their heads at this brutish act. "I mean, I guess we could actually plow the lots better or something. Or maybe if we had actually put in that parking structure thingy we talked about before. But then how would prospective students see the beautiful Portage Lake upon driving up to this otherwise desolate campus? No. We'll just deal with this instead."

The car-crusher in question has been advised by his attorney to attempt an insanity plea. The court date has yet to be set, but they are preparing for battle. "I can't tell you how many times I wish I could have done the same thing this brave, but highly disturbed, individual has done. It's, dare I say, an act of courage and community service! I say he deserves a reward," his attorney stated.

Reaction on campus is mixed. Many students are angry that such an act could happen in the safe haven of Houghton. Others are in support. Others yet are now terrified to park on campus, and those that do have been parking better. Regardless of how the trial turns out, the automobile annihilator posted the following update on his Facebook: "Even if I get charged, no one is parking like a butt-face anymore. I win."

I think Tech should invest some of our tuition dollars in a killdozer. Students who are unable to park due to cars being all the fuck over should be allowed to rampage with said killdozer. President Mroz? Board of Control? Anybody?

"We just don't want that sort of name to be associated with us. I mean if this was before he was caught doping, I'm sure we would have taken him as fast as we could. But now that his honor has been shamed and wrecked, we just can't make that kind of investment" said one anonymous company head.

Fortunately for Armstrong, burlap sacks are in this season.

In the meantime, Armstrong has found work peddling people in the UP of Michigan to and from school. Students who use the services not that Armstrong is particularly effective and seems to be able to handle both the cold weather and the terrible conditions of the UP. Armstrong is thought to be making up to 5 dollars a ride to or from campus due to his expediency. One student even commented that Armstrong was even more swift than Neil's taxi service.

"He's like Jimmy Johns. He's always there within like, a minute after you call him. It's insane."
