Tech Surprised at Increase in School Spirit(s)

by Jon "Big O" Mahan ~ Daily Bull

HOUGHTON, MI - Following the annual Winter Carnival Celebration, Michigan Tech was rated to have the highest level of school spirit across the nation, shocking many in academia, administration, and on campus.

The study, conducted every year at random, samples the student population of every college and university and asks them how much they support their schools. In general, Engineering and Technology universities score far behind their Liberal Arts counterparts. Sociologists have linked this to Liberal Arts schools having an aura of being a party around them, whereas the Tech Schools are usually just seen as a place to get your schooling done so you can be a productive member of society.

This year the study happened to fall on the night of Winter Carnival. Due to circumstances beyond the administration's control, many students were in very high spirits because of Carny and were happy to answer the questions asked by the pollsters.

According to the data, the most common response to "I have strong school spirit" was "Fuck yeah Tech!" and "I fuckin' love the Huskies." The pollsters were unable to put these responses into the nominal categories listed as they were, and just generalized them as 'strongly agree.' Because of this, Michigan Tech beat out other high ranking spirit(s) schools such as USC, Texas, Alabama, University of Michigan, Ohio State Uni-

Man Sponsored by Taco Bell to Set World Record

by Alex Dinsmoor ~ Daily Bull

Taco Bell has recently announced that they will indeed be sponsoring a World Record attempt at the "longest time spent playing phone games while pooping" record. The current record, is currently held by James Caspian of Kansas City, KS after consuming $7 worth of Taco Bell, Chipotle, and a Culvers burger and milkshake all within a 24 hour period. During his world record run, it was reported that he knew to come prepared to his bathroom quest, taking with him a phone charger, iPod speakers, a timer, and a landline, just in case of an extreme emergency. Through this valiant effort, he managed to spend 6 hours 23 minutes and 47 seconds in the bathroom (not counting hand washing time).

"After consuming the trifecta of bathroom destroying foods, I knew I had something special in me. It was like when a mother is excited about the birth of her child, but instead of something she wants to pick up and cuddle, it's a world class turd."

When veteran pooper Charlie Lendsion of Royal Oak, MI found out about how little time the record was being held with, he knew he could easily break that, with a constant supply of the rocket fuel for his colon, he could easily break the 7 hour mark.

"When I approached Taco Bell about attempting this world record challenge, they were a bit skeptical. The main question was 'why would anyone want to do something as strange as this.' Once I finished explaining the pride associated with my poops, it was clear that Taco Bell would be a perfect fit for me," exclaimed Charlie.

The plan, as described by Taco Bell's PR Director, is as follows: Start off 12 hours before, consuming a Doritos Locos Taco with Fire Sauce every hour. At 6 hours before, he will add a bean burrito of his choice every 2 hours. Then he will begin his toilet conquest. At that time, he will eat a Supreme Hard Shell Taco every hour along with a Crunchwrap Supremes offset from the taco by 30 minutes.

Experts are proclaiming this challenge to be "extremely unhealthy and disgusting," although Charlie feels that it is his one goal in life to complete this challenge. "Ever since I was a little kid, I knew that it was my calling to poop for twelve hours straight while playing games by myself. Some may say that a higher calling destined me to do this. As Mary gave birth to Christ, I am giving birth to Christ's poop."

With the challenge to be done on Valentine's Day (as Charlie explains it, "I have a date with destiny!"), arrangements are being made to install special bidet wielding toilets and phone chargers in Times Square, where the challenge will take place and be televised on FOX. Can Charlie dream the dream of eternal defecation? It is only a matter of time before we will know. ☺ versity (screw that pretentious THE crap), and Notre Dame.

The poll has now put Tech on the spotlight for many partiers the nationwide. Tech has even begun receiving applications from far off places like Hawaii, California, Florida, and Texas for admissions into their Liberal Arts programs.

When questioned about what the university would do about the swell of Liberal Arts applicants, Glenn Mroz had this to say: "Well, I guess we're just going to have to find a way to fit them all. Perhaps we're actually going to have to get some parking on campus. So much for that wonderful pond idea we had. There'll be no room for it what with the Walker expansion, the new Dorm, and the new parking lot."

Already crews are busy all over campus trying to prepare for next year. Even the CS majors are getting a little excited. "What with all these new Liberal Arts majors coming in, maybe we can find a girl who will actually find us attractive." When informed of the small possibility of that being true, the room went silent, though we swear we heard someone say "What's a girl?"

Either way, it looks like the ratio is ready to swell, both to our benefit and our demise. Only time will tell if these changes will be permanent, or if all these partiers up and leave at the first hint of the winter's chill. One thing's for sure, the polling company will never be polling during Winter Carny again.
