The DOE Gets One Right

by Cameron Long ~ Daily Bull

Lansing, MI - In a move that surprised no one, the Michigan Department of Education has decided that state aid for Northern Michigan University will henceforth be contingent upon a name change.

"It just makes sense," said DOE spokesperson Andrea Collins. "This has really been staring us in the face for years and we finally noticed."

After an extensive study that occurred over several months and required literally tens of man-hours to complete, the State determined what many already knew: Northern Michigan University is a place for nine thousand idiots to hide from life, get degrees, and pretend they're intelligent.

When interviewed by this reporter, a Northern student said, "This place just feels safe, you know? I knew I didn't have a chance at getting into a high-quality school like Ashland...I mean, this place only requires a 19 ACT. I had to take it three times to get that high." The student spoke on condition of anonymity, though he said he was in the Hospitality Management program.

Northern's degree programs include: the aforementioned Hospitality Management program, where students learn to be unhelpful hotel desk jockeys; Ski Area Business Management, which prepares students for the boom-

What Being American Means

by Ken Arndt ~ Daily Bull

What does it truly mean to be an American? Does it mean equality for all, freedom of religion or much, much more...

It means you can go to a McDonalds order a super-sized Big Mac meal, no, twenty supersized Big Mac meals and eat them all to the point where your ass is so big it breaks the electric motor in the car seat and you can sue the auto manufacturer and win...

It means you can leave your fat house cat outside while you go to Florida—to the point of nearly killing the poor animal. And to "warm him up," you microwave him. Which obviously kills your poor cat. But it's OK, because you're in America and you can sue the company that makes the microwaves...

It means you can cleverly attempt to rob someone by climbing on their roof (why this is sneaky, I'll never know), then pace the roof multiple times looking for the vent for the attic and unknowingly fall through the skylight on the roof. And the thief didn't know this at the time but the home owner was filming their infomercials for blender sales at four in the morning. The robber fell on thirty to forty industrial blenders, maiming him severely. But, this being America, the robber sued the homeowner because that's not what the home owner should be doing at four in the morning. The homeowner then out Americas him by suing the manufacture of the blenders...

It means you can leave your newly born baby of in a baby stroller. Not even strapped in, unattended, with the parking breaks off, in one of only five train stations in the country. Then, when the baby stroller starts to roll into the path of the train, it's already going too fast for you to stop. It's crushed by the train. Magically, the baby and stroller are fine. So, you sue the stroller company because you wanted to kill your baby and it never said it was train proof...

It means you can marry a woman who is drop dead gorgeous, have two kids and when they're butt ugly, find out your wife had a shit ton of plastic surgery and sue her for misrepresentation of the product, and she then sues the plastic surgeon because that's the American way.

It means you can be a total screw up in life, rely on welfare to the point where all you do is sit on your fat ass all day, get a long scraggly beard and drink twenty to thirty beers a day in your mom's basement. So what do you do now? The most American thing possible: sue GOD...

ing market for ski lift operations supervisors; and a Bachelor of Science... in Art History. Additionally, the university's most-attended class, Math for Dummies, has drawn rave reviews from members of the Special Education community.

Prospective students are reportedly devastated at the suspension of the Entertainment and Sports Promotion degree. Also suspended is the Accounting/Financial Planning major, because nobody needs that anyway. NMU does not offer an engineering degree. Degrees planned for future years include Garbage Picking, Ditch Digging, and Street Sweeping.

The traditional athletic rival is McDonald's Hamburger University. Graduates of the two schools regularly compete for the championship at the National Burger Flippin' Tournament.

Glenn Mroz, President of Michigan Technological University (a top-tier university to the northwest) shed some light on the practice of granting degrees to morons. "You see, it's very simple: our graduates need people to work for them. The students coming out of that school in Marquette are perfect for this role."

NMU's new name reflects both the quality of its students and the sense of humor for which the Department of Education is well-known. The institution will be called the Witless Protection Program starting in the Fall 2013 semester. ☺

by Alex Dinsmoor ~

Highest Incarnation of the Revolutionary Comradely Love

Fans of the "Michigan Tech Confessions" page on Facebook witnessed late Wednesday one of their peers taking the fan page a bit too seriously. Status updates from numerous Michigan Tech students mention a person taking each and every confession too far. "It's ridiculous," one of the users told the Daily Bull, "doesn't everyone who likes this page know that most everyone here is just trying to troll each other?" He went on to note the influx of confessions talking about how ridiculous the rest of the confessions are. "It seems like ever since he found the page, he is obsessed with correcting the people he thinks is "wrong"" one of the fans claims.

"It's really degrading the page," one student claims, "you go on any other university's confession page and it's significantly better than ours. The confessions are better, the comments are better, and there is no one being a huge douche to others and their confessions."

The Daily Bull sought after the administrator of the page to get their take on people who take the page too seriously. "This page used to be so popular," the admin of the MTU confessions page (who requested to remain anonymous) told The Bull, "it seems every time there is a decent confession on the page, there is another one created denouncing it. The truth hurts and people here at Tech can't handle it." We additionally asked them about the fans who take the page seriously. "People know this is all to mess with people, right?"

Even Tech students have found themselves going to other confession pages to find enjoyment. The following is taken from Northern Michigan's confessions page:

"I'm a Tech student, whenever I feel bad because of school I look at this page to make myself feel better!"

As a university, we cannot let things like this happen to our students; one should not have to be forced to go to NMU's page for entertainment. As such, we urge the Michigan Tech community to drink more and do more stupid stuff so the rest of us have something to laugh about online when we too are drinking with friends.
