Guy Sleeping in Class Doing Better Than You

by Rico Bastian ~ Usurer

It was reported earlier today after a comparison of academic standings that the guy sleeping in class is currently doing better than you.

"In most scenarios, it would be safe to assume that a student who remains alert during class, such as yourself, would receive higher grades than one who consistently dozes off during lectures," researcher Erika Daniels said, "But this is not one of those scenarios. That guy sleeping over there is doing marginally better than you are."

Sources close to the sleeping student also confirmed that he also spends much less time working on his homework and doing reading outside of class than you do.

"Yeah, he's a pretty laid back guy. He hardly spends any time studying or doing homework," friend of the guy sleeping Cedric Craig said, "You know, I don't think that he even has a book for the class. I'm pretty sure that he just shares one with that guy sitting next to him so he can get the homework problems."

Student Loses Motivation in Record Time

by Chase "Bran Muffin" Peterson ~ Daily Bull

A 3rd year mechanical engineering student has broken all records by completely giving up on classes in only two and a half weeks. The student chooses to remain anonymous, we will choose to call him "Justgan Kostin". Justgan returned from summer break where he spent his time diligently working in his internship, though, when he returned to campus many of his friends remarked "something just seemed off, like he had lost something important".

Pic O' The Day

Nobody would discover what that something was until the first week of school when all he wanted to do was to put his head down on his desk and sleep. During the first week of school it became clear that poor Justgan had lost the will to continue in his studies. "He kept rocking back and forth muttering something about design work and deadlines," his roommate recounted. "I mean, I know that this is a normal reaction, but none of us really hit this point until at least three quarters of the way through the semester" his roommate continued.

When Justgan was confronted about his total and complete lack of motivation he just stared back with dead eyes and said "Have you seen my schedule this semester? Thermo, fluids, heat transfer along with IDM and instrumentation". He just turned around after that and kept browsing Imgur and eating Cheetos in his underwear while watching old SpongeBob re-runs.

The dean of students offered this explanation for the strange behavior: "This is by no means an isolated incident, however this is the fastest we have ever seen the phenomenon occur. Typically

It was also revealed that not only is that guy sleeping doing better than you in this class, but in all other classes.

"That guy sleeping currently has an accumulative GPA of 3.96," Daniels said. "Upon further investigation, it would appear that he had similar work ethic throughout each and every class he has taken."

Though you may think that the guy sleeping in class is surely inferior to you in some way, it has been assured that his life overall is much better than yours.

"That guy sleeping in class really has it all. You name it, he's got it," MTU student Doug Stevenson said. "He's got a beautiful girlfriend, he's seen as a big hit at all the parties he goes to, and he also has some of the greatest friends a guy could ask for. Over the summer, he had a really cushy internship with NASA. It paid really well, and from what I hear, they've been asking him to come on full time. He's got all that, and there's no way that what you have could possibly compare."

You may also be thinking that the guy sleeping has just had it easy throughout his life, and that if you had access to everything his assumed rich parents got for him, you'd be able to coast through classes sleeping all the time, but you are wrong there as well.

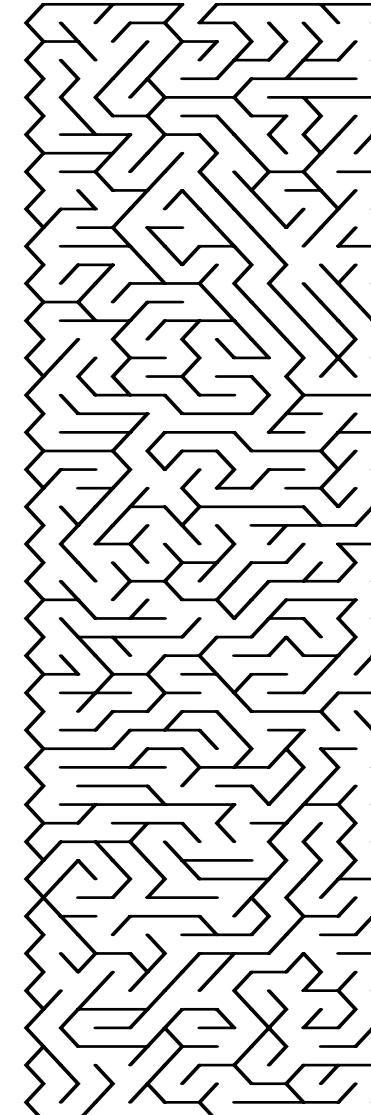

"It really took a lot for him to get where he is today," childhood friend of the guy sleeping in class Olivia Welles said. "His dad was never in the picture, and with five brothers and sisters, his mom was hardly making ends meet. He got his first job when he was fourteen to help support his family, never spent a dime on himself. He got all A's in high school. He was accepted to Harvard and Princeton, offered a full ride even, but he really liked MTU's program for engineers, so that's why he's here. He's really earned everything he has."

As of press time, the only thing which you have over him is that you get a good night's sleep. ☺

we see performance drops like with 4th and 5th year students and we can typically ascribe the whole unpleasantness to the harsh reality of the working world. But this is the fastest I have ever seen the disconnect set in".

While counseling services have been notified of the extreme case of demotivation, they are currently gearing up for the lengthy process of helping untold numbers of students deal with the fact that they did not land their dream internship for the following year. ☺
