

In response to the Twitter outrage, a new pageant starts in 2014 to replace Miss America. Will feature only white, protestant, middle-class women.

It Doesn't Matter

by Abigail Skibowki ~ Daily Bull Newb

I have been noticing quite the influx of hipsters on campus lately and it doesn't bother me too much. However, they come here and they spread like a disease. One of the most noticeable types of hipster is the Music Hipster. These people try to outdo each other at every opportunity they get whenever it comes to the topic of music. I honestly don't give two snots how Skrillex makes you feel overcome with emotions. Have you ever used Shazam? Put that up to a blender full of nails and it comes up as Skrillex. That is really something to be proud of.

To the guy who is sitting in the library listening to Chris Brown's Greatest Hits, turn that crud off...or at least down. You do not need to have the volume at the loudest possible setting while you creep that one girl's Facebook you met on Saturday night. I know you think it might be cool to sing along a little bit under your breath, but son, you sound like a white Vanilla Ice.

To the girl wearing leggings as pants, I know you feel like a badass when you listen to Green Day, but it really does not matter to anyone that you found them before their American Idiot days. Congrats, that is literally their seventh studio album. Another thing that I noticed is the HUGE headphones these people sport. I know you probably paid a lot for them and I am sure they have great sound quality, but how do you manage to fit those things in your backpack? I can barely fit my extra Ticon in my side pocket, much less a hardhat. Some people use them as a neck warmer device, and I can respect that. I can handle the swag.

What I'm trying to say is, it does not matter at all what you listen to or when you found the cool new band. Nobody really cares; if they do, they should get a new hobby. Also, your choice in music is probably going to be popular in a couple months and you will lose your hipster "cred". So just cool it. And turn the volume down. Please.

Weird Kid Down the Hall Still Won't Stop Talking About Tron Legacy

by Anony-whaaat? ~ Daily Bull

Several RAs in East McNair have complained to Housing Director Travis Pierce following another outbreak of that guy down the hall still obsessing over Tron Legacy. The staff were demanding that the guy's room be "stripped of the fourteen posters, numerous action figures, and life-sized lightcycle replica" because his poor roommate has "nowhere to put anything. Literally, nowhere."

TLP apologized to the frustrated RAs, explaining that there isn't a provision in the housing agreement for forcibly removing someone's possessions unless they are contraband. Pierce also didn't realize that anyone still talked about Tron, since "that fad has come and gone twice now, and graphics are probably 3x better now than they were in 2010."

The resident, who the Bull agreed not to name to protect what privacy he has, routinely begins his calculus homework by ominously declaring, "....THE GRID. A mathematical frontier!" He repeatedly complains to his roommate about his favorite shower never being available, but then "one day... I GOT IN!" His CLU action figure doubles as an alarm clock, which issues screeching renditions of 'Derezzed' every morning at 6:25.

People in his hall have begun avoiding this guy at all costs, insisting that they can't go even five minutes of conversation without him mentioning that the con-

It is cruel, you know, that music should be so beautiful. It has the beauty of loneliness of pain: of strength and freedom. The beauty of disappointment and never-satisfied love. The cruel beauty of nature and everlasting beauty of monotony.

The Week Ahead: Weather

by Elise Conley ~ Komandarm

In a strange turn of events, it seems that the snow has decided to hold off, allowing the end of September to remain chilly, sunny, and just windy enough to really fuck up the Frisbockey tournament this weekend. In an effort for you to be as prepared as possible for the week ahead, we've prepared a neat little forecaster that's just as accurate as the one you were going to look up on the internet anyway.

SATURDAY: It's going to rain. A lot. 70ish. Plus, naturally, wind. Y'all enjoy that Frisbockey.

SUNDAY: Windy as fuck. 70ish.

MONDAY: It might rain. No one really knows. Partly cloudy. Almost 70, which, let's be real, is a lie. Probably will either feel like 45 or 95. No real in between.

TUESDAY: Blizzard. 23ish, with 50 mph gusts. Projected opening date of Mont Ripley.

WEDNESDAY: Mont Ripley closes. 85ish. Humid, with nary a draft to be found.

THURSDAY: 60 and breezy.

FRIDAY: When it rains it pours. (And opens doors. Who doesn't like a little Train sometimes?) 🌟 versation is so riveting he's going to "store it on my identity disc forever!" He has further been excluded from all hall votes on: movie nights, game nights (frisbee-chucking duels are always his suggestion), food socials ("Jeff Bridges totally sat by a bowl of grapes in Tron Legacy!"), sports outings (motorbikes), and just about everything else.

Hallmates came to the Daily Bull with their pleas to end the madness, but so far no one has been able to shut him up. His roommate has unofficially moved in with a really quiet Asian kid down the hall, insisting that even though he hates anime, it's way better than watching Tron on repeat during all waking hours (and some sleeping hours).

In an effort to be balanced and unbiased, the Bull is obligated to report that for the one or two other people in the universe interested, there is a newly formed club (guess who's the president?) called the Tron Reenactment and Obsession Network (TRON). Meetings are on Tron Tuesdays at Tron-thirty -- you may have to find this guy yourself and ask him, because we couldn't figure out when Tron-thirty is, either. 🌟
