The Debt Ceiling and You! A Beginner's Guide

by Alex Dinsmoor ~ Editor-in-Chief

Hello! If you are reading this, chances are you have either hit the debt ceiling, or you are about to crash through it! If either of these are the case, then you'll be delighted to know that this is the guide for you! With all of these tips, you're sure to be well prepared for the post-ceiling world!

The Stock Market

With the debt ceiling crashing to the ground, the next thing the debt is bound to hit is the stock market! With all of your stocks and securities in jeopardy, you should do the only reasonable thing; pull out all of your money and invest it in a safer place. What's safe in a time such like this? Pokemon cards. Those old Charizards and Ancient Mews are worth a lot of money, and their values are always rising!

Food Shortages

With the government in jeopardy, many cities throughout the nation will go into panic, causing rampant food shortages. People love food and without a stable government, that's all people will have left to believe in. Taco Bells throughout the country will have massive lines (to the counter AND the bathroom), the Burger Kings will be flooded with people trying to "get it [their] way", and the KFCs will run out of gravy! With that said, it's best to stock up early. Taco Bell burritos can not only be used for a cheap food source, but also for barricading houses from floods!

Money Supply

Without a government, there will be no one to mint more money to replace that which is lost or stored away in people's savings. Persons are encouraged to turn to their house's Monopoly set for emergency supplies of money, as it's the only currency prevalent enough to be useful in the post-ceiling world.

Marshall Law

With the government no longer a reliable and stable place, we will resort to Marshall Law; a set of laws determined by Marshall from How I Met Your Mother. People will be required to answer WWMD (What Would Marshall Do) before they do anything. If Marshall wouldn't do it, neither should you.

The Internet

The internet is already a dark and scary place. There's nothing that can happen that could make it any worse. As always, don't read the status posts of your crazy friends, especially now.

Canadian Invasion

With the United States at its weakest, Canadians will most likely try to invade the country and force their syrupy beliefs on us. Although the takeover will be gruesome and scary, they will continue to be polite throughout the process, making sure to say 'sorry' at every possible opportunity. Having more Tim Horton's around wouldn't be so bad, eh? ☹

"Nostalgia is a necessary thing, I believe, and a way for all of us to find peace in that which we have accomplished, or even failed to accomplish. At the same time, if nostalgia precipitates actions to return to that fabled, rosy-painted time, particularly in one who believes his life to be a failure, then it is an empty thing, doomed to produce nothing but frustration and an even greater sense of failure."
