Sochi 2014: A Brief Overview

by Elise Conley ~ Sochi Correspondent

As most of you know by now, the 2014 Winter Olympic Games will be held in Sochi. The 22nd Winter Olympic Games are due to start on the 6th of February until the 23rd, with some qualifying events prior to the opening ceremony. Several typically warm nations are due to make their Winter Olympic debut, so be sure to look for Togo's bobsled team, the curling teams from Paraguay and Zimbabwe, and the skier from Timor Leste; their performances will surely be as great as the legendary Jamaican bobsled team.

The sports to be included in this Games are: alpine skiing, biathlon, bobsleigh, cross-country skiing, curling, figure skating, freestyle skiing, ice hockey, luge, Nordic combined, short track speed skating, skeleton, snowboarding, and speed skating. Twelve new events have been added within these categories, which will make this the largest Winter Olympics thus far. Sorry, guys. You'll be sitting through team figure skating for weeks.

The events most likely to result in participant injury: ice hockey (obviously), skeleton, ski jump, and any event involving someone with blades strapped to their feet. Now, you'll notice that the beginning of the Olympics falls during Carni. Feel free to turn figure skating into whatever you'd like to make it more bearable. Every time the announcer names the jump performed by the figure skater, drink once.

The most interesting event will probably be the press game that Putin will be playing throughout the Games. With so many out athletes and people will-

Broomball Celebrates Ball Drop With Dropping of Balls

by Alex Dinsmoor ~ Broomball Editor

On Tuesday afternoon, the Broomball Committee kicked off the 2014 Broomball Season with their annual Ball Drop. The event, which was attended by many across campus, was celebrated with Broomball, giveaways, hot cocoa, and most importantly the dropping of balls. To make this year's event special, the committee decided to emphasize the ball drop part of the event by inviting many teenage boys to drop their balls at the event.

This move, which was one of the committee's most outlandish moves in recent years, brought record crowds to the event, including an untapped market of audience members who enjoy watching people enter puberty. The event drew record numbers even with the cold wind chills, bringing to the courts more blue balls than the ones on the court.

With the popularity of this event, the Broomball committee is investigating other PR stunts to tap into groups of people who may have not enjoyed Broomball previously. When asked, the committee told The Bull that they were toying with the idea of holding the Alumni Competition with elderly alumni and MTU hockey players, a skills competition where players not only have to display broomball skills, but also survival skills, and a playoffs in which it is a battle to the death instead of a simple broomball game. Bets on each individual game can be placed with the Business Department during normal business hours. 🍷 ing to protest, it's unlikely that Russia's prisons will be able to hold them all. Will we be seeing a reopening of the gulags in Siberia? At this point, it's too soon to tell, but sources say the prisons are being "spruced up" to prepare for the influx. ☹
