USA Suggest Trade Between Cannibalistic Rat Ship and Bieber

by Alex Dinsmoor ~ Editor in Chief

The United States Department of Justice has officially sent a proposal to the English Royal Family for the trade of a cannibalistic rat-infested ocean liner for the unruly teenager Justin Bieber. The proposal came to light after Bieber's most recent arrests. Attorney General Eric Holder told the press, "this kid has just caused nothing but problems since coming to this country and since I can't technically ban him from the country, we did the second best thing, trading him to another country for an ocean liner full of cannibalistic rats!"

Critics have been hailing Holder's move as revolutionary. Many in the press have been up in arms ever since Bieber's arrest on January 23rd following a night of drunken drag racing with rented cars in the streets of Miami. "It's ridiculous what he's doing," one mom of teenage daughters told The Bull, "he used to be so cute with all of his songs and his hair flips, but now he's gone all bad boy and I can no longer let my daughters listen to him! Hopefully sending him to Great Brittan will straighten him out like those One Direction boys. Now that's a group of boys I can get behind! [whispers quietly] or let them get behind me..."

Even Bieber's management is behind Holder's move to the surprise of many critics. "Europe is great!" Bieber's manager told The Bull. "There's basically no drinking age, so he can't get MIPs, everything's in Pounds so we get more cash for concerts, and who doesn't love those accents!?"

However popular the decision may be, there are still many critics of the plan, citing many technical issues that the DOJ may have overlooked. Among the plans

Markos Panagopoulos Unimpressed with Fraternity So Far

by Anony-whaaaaaaaaaaaaat? ~ Keeper of the As

EAST LANSING -- An international student brought forth a formal complaint against 'the' Michigan State University last Tuesday for "misleading him" about the nature of his fraternity. Markos Panagopoulos, who hails from the Epirus region of Greece, does not feel that his experience in the Omicron Mu Gamma fraternity has been at all what he was promised. In fact, he hasn't enjoyed a single keftedakia, souvlaki, or decent olive tray since he arrived in the US last August. The only spanakopita ever served in the frat house came out of a frozen box from Trader Joes.

"This... this is not what I thought joining these guys meant," spluttered an outraged Panagopoulos to the Lansing State Journal. He explains that during his freshman orientation, he was bombarded with potential organizations to join. "Bowling Club, Physics Society, sure, there were all those things. But there was an Indian Students' Association, a Malaysian League, the Korean Culture Assembly... naturally, I decided to join Greek Life. But this? This is not Greek life."

Among the numerous complaints filed by Mr. Panagopoulos were:

- Inappropriate use of togas
- Lack of trips to white sand beaches
- Distressing shortage of lamb-based food
- Lousy wine
- People saying 'omni-cron'

greatest critics are sites like TMZ and the E! network. "Let's be honest here, if you've ever looked at our "news" it's pretty much 60% crazy things that Bieber did last night somewhere. With him moving overseas that means we'll have to relocate an entire team overseas. You know how much that will cost? Way more than we can afford."

Perhaps the most surprising fact of the move is the lack of out roar over an entire ship full of cannibalistic rats entering one of the most crowded ports in the country. "This boat is literally full of rats that have had nothing to eat for the past few months than the bodies of the other rats. These things are out for blood and could possibly attack and kill anyone who may get within reach of the vessel." Holder told the press. "However, we feel like this is a fair trade for a Canadian teenager who just can't control himself in public."

While the American public awaits a decision from the Royal Family, it has been suggested that the general public stocks up with rat poison for either our possible rat overlords or for Bieber's 20th birthday in March. 🐭

He also was quick to point out that his frat brothers' girlfriends watching 'My Big Fat Greek Wedding' and the remake of 'Mama Mia' did not make matters any better. "This Greek Life has nothing Greek about it at all!" he raged on Facebook.

MSU cultural sensitivity officers have noted Panagopoulous' complaint and will consider forming another student organization based on actual Greek people doing traditionally Greek things. However, they are at a loss for what to call it -- "Greek Organization", "Greek Association," and "Greek"-anything can almost universally be misconstrued for fraternity/sorority life.

In the meanwhile, Panagopoulos has started making the motions to drop out of Omicron Mu Gamma in favor of being a TA for an introductory Greek class. "I have this accent and can speak this beautiful language," he shrugged. "I might as well use it to get laid instead of made to guard some stupid rock and paint 'omni-cron' all over it." 🐭
