

The Daily Bull is probably not suitable for those under the age of 18 and should not be taken seriously...

The Daily ^{-ish} Bull

-like The Onion, but shittier!

IT'S BEEN

Trick or Treat!

DAYS SINCE OUR LAST SHITSTORM!

Research: Humans are Devolving

O. Captain

My Captain

A groundbreaking new research article released earlier this week has caused quite a stir around campus. It suggests strong evidence for the devolution of the human language, and quite frankly the human race as a whole, and all of it revolves around the internet.

return to monke

“One of the key differences between modern and pre-evolved apes is our ability to walk upright,” Dr. Richard C. Normus, an expert in the field of cyberevolution, explained. “With the relatively recent addition of computers and phones to everyone’s daily routine, we have noticed a severe curve resulting in the natural posture of most people.” He went on to explain that this shrimp-like attribute mirrors the skeletal remains of our pre-evolved predecessors.

While this point alone makes for a strong claim in the theory of devolution, another strong point was the change in our use of language over the past few decades. The use of hieroglyphics is recorded through many ancient civilizations as a way to communicate. Gradual evolution of these picture symbols are what led to the modern languages and writing systems we have today. With the internet however, this has slowly been rolled back.

“We are seeing more and more instances of people using symbols in place of words and letters. Our undergrad research team suggest the colloquial name for these symbols are ‘emojis’, but we have been calling them ‘risus symbolum’ or ‘risus’ for short,” one researcher explained. “At first it started out with normal alphabetical symbols, colons and parenthesis, but modern keyboards have added fuel to the decline of our language by making actual special characters to express various ideas.”

The final piece of evidence this revolutionary research suggested pointed to the devolving state of the human race, was our form of communication. Not only have we once again begun to use picture symbols in our everyday communications, but now people are telling stories by speaking and dancing instead of just writing it down.

“Kids these days with their tik-snaps and insta-books, they don’t know how to sit down and write a good old fashioned text to their friends.” a middle aged mom remarked. She proceeded to win her game of Candy Crush and immediately update her Facebook status

Pumpkins Subjected to BDSM Practices

Pumpkin Carver ;)

Pumpkin Pirate Apple-Fritter-Jimmy, owner of the Angel's Spice pumpkin patch, was amazed this year. Not only did they sell out of pumpkins, but they were all taken a week before Halloween— well ahead of years previous. But it wasn't just him: most other pumpkin patches around the Keweenaw were cleared out early this year, leaving most growers puzzling over what the reason could be.

"I wag'r after the pan-dem-ic, folks were excited fer a normal Halloween again." Apple-Fritter-Jimmy surmised. "But it's all the same to me: I've got me booty— now it's time to head to the club and get sum more if you catch me drift, yarrrrrrrrrrr."

Other growers postulated their own theories. Some figured it might just be a lucky year, others that Starbucks pumpkin spice lattes must be late this year, and basic white girls are desperately trying to synthesize their own. Yet, none of the growers could have guessed the real, shocking reason behind the spike in pumpkin sales this year.

The first clue as to the true fate of these pumpkins came in an image posted on the internet, with a picture of multiple pumpkins tied up in various leather and chain restraints with the caption "When Halloween is coming/ but not before I say so". Another was a sighting of a pumpkin wearing some sort of cage over its stalk, with a strange hole cut into the side of it. Up on the Tech Trails at MTU, students were shocked to find multiple gourds suspended from trees with various different rigging, and initially thought it was part of a terrified forest attraction. No one came forward to claim the pumpkins— however, they were reported missing by the very next day.

It was one final finding from the residents of East McNair that broke the case. Yesterday morning, many students reported walking into their kitchenettes and finding pumpkins wearing various latex suits, with apples tied across the openings, often arranged orthogonally to each other. The sudden appearance of these pumpkins suggests a coordinated effort, or the efforts of a single dedicated individual with access to copious amounts of pumpkin-sized BDSM paraphernalia, to subject dozens of pumpkins to the practice.

But no one tell old Apple-Fritter-Jimmy— seeing something you raised in a situation like that tends to scar a person.

This weekend, in Fisher 135:

10/23: 5:30 8:30 11:30

10/24: 5:30 8:30 11:30

Tickets are $3, concessions are $1 each for soda, popcorn, and candy.

Calling All Writers!

Submit your Halloween Stories to bull@mtu.edu

Your story may be featured in the paper!

Email bull@mtu.edu for info

STUDIO PIZZA

YOU'LL FALL IN LOVE AFTER YOUR FIRST BITE!
—CHRIS & TRICE PIZZA CONNOISSEUR

We Deliver!
482-5100
www.thestudiopizza.com

The Daily Bull

Ben Wittrop Editor-in-chief
Kevin Li Vice President
Christian Clemmons Treasurer
Andrea Hernandez Secretary
Carl Blair Advisor

staffwriters: Nuns on Ripple, Christian Naval, Buggy, Asian Diddy, Jane Scott

Copyright © 2021 The Daily Bull, a non-profit organization. All rights reserved. Articles may be freely distributed electronically or on late night talk shows provided credit is given, and that this notice is included. The Daily Bull reserves the right to refuse any ads or guest articles without reason. All opinionated letters sent to the editor will be treated as material to be published unless expressly stated otherwise. Original works published remain property of the creator, however The Daily Bull reserves the right to reprint any submission in future issues unless expressly stated other wise.

Advertising inquiries, question and comments should be directed to BULL@MTU.EDU. Guest submissions are welcomed and encouraged. Guest contributors may write under a pen name to remain anonymous.

DISCLAIMER: The Daily Bull is a satirical publication for entertainment purposes only. All stories in The Daily Bull are works of fiction and any resemblance to real events or people are coincidental.

Hi, my name is Big Al, and I approve this message