SUPERBOWL

I'm a TUBI Thumper Now

The CCP

During the Superbowl a few Sundays ago, we had this very close moment between the Kansas City Chiefs and Philadelphia Eagles. The room was tense and fans were on edge. All seemed normal, the chatter from the tv didn't seem out of place, and the remote was lying in reachable distance to someone. Into the fourth quarter, Kevin Burkhard and Greg Olson reappear on screen. As the announcers banter generalities about the game again, someone's invisible hand changes the channel and selects "Mr. & Mrs. Smith" movie.

Fans literally. Lost. Their. Minds.

My wife called child protective services on herself. She didn't want anything to do with me and my kid. My wife, at that moment, kicked us out of the house and we were in our undergarments. Like Dammit, she really doesn't want us in her life anymore. And I swear I didn't do anything, I DID NOT CHANGE THE CHANNEL! It's been 2 seconds and a CPS chopper arrived on scene. I think I'm going to file for divorce.

Although, some others I heard really got into a big fit of rage. Apparently, my cousin punched a hole straight through his wall. His cousin's cousin's brother in law's sister lost half her vocal chords because she was a screecher. I even heard that the TV was thrown from the MEEM. Alotta red flags erected like cancer, today! You can't get rid of them! I Pray that we are all safe from those heathens, but I gotta say, Tubi really opened my eyes.

We are Americans. The loud obnoxious childish tantrums blinds our arrogance to recognize what's actually important to us - 2nd Amendment Rights (kids with guns), freedom, and democracy. 'MERICA!!!!

Students for Eternal Damnation Bring Eternal Worm Back to Campus

Big Sephiroth

Controversy has erupted around campus after upcoming student org Students for Eternal Damnation (abbreviated SFED) requested funds from the Undergraduate Student Government (abbreviated USG) to unleash the Eternal Worm (God cannot save the man who attempts to abbreviate Its name) in all Its unglory onto the campus of Michigan Technological University. The Unholy Beast From Hell, harrowed be Its name, previously visited campus in mid October and left nothing but destruction in Its desolate wake. The Eternal Worm was known to have sent multiple students to personalized hells filled with their greatest fears - reports describe experiences such as "infinite twisting hallways echoing screams just around the corner," "flames melting skin, so much more skin than you've ever had," and "Fisher 139." SFED claims that bringing the Eternal Worm back to campus would be an enriching experience for not just students, but the Houghton community as a whole - but student pushback claims "if they must lay their eyes on Its wretched figure once more they fear the darkness would never leave their souls."

A few days ago, USG gathered in a meeting with record attendance to discuss funding the Eternal Worm. SFED requested a sacrifice of 50 virgins to appease the Worm, of which USG approved a maximum of 12 lambs and a McChicken; this was met with minor pushback from SFED, but eventually the org relented as there is no shortage of virgins on campus for them to just grab off the streets. Students opposing the resurgence of the Eternal Worm expressed concerns about Its arrival, statements included "the Eternal Worm has threatened to raze this town and everyone in it," "you guys aren't even a registered student org, what the hell," "where's the bathroom? Sorry I'm lost," and "the Eternal Worm called me a slur on Twitter." The ambiguous form that identified itself as the president of SFED replied to these concerns with "OK yeah sure, but, you guys fail to take into consideration the fact that it's funny and I want to. Pretty please?" to which supporters of the Eternal Worm nodded in agreement. Claims from a non partisan attendee said "I understand that the Eternal Worm has caused millenia of pain and sorrow for people all around the world, the flutter of Its myriad legs still haunts my dreams, trust me, I understand! But to not pay the Eternal Worm Its summoning fee would be restricting Its freedom of speech! How would you feel if you wanted to, say, go to Disney Land and a group of people who you don't give a rat's ass about refused to pay out of their own pockets for it?! Pretty bad, huh? Won't someone think of the poor Worm?!"

The USG, offered a concluding statement of "Uh, yeah, what the fuck? We're really voting on this? Really??" before voting 0, 20, 0 on funding the Eternal Worm, declaring the motion an "epic fail." Further controversy has followed this verdict as the Eternal Worm is rumored to have begun forming a legal team to look into if it really is fair for the USG to deny It funding, even though It's free to visit campus at any time, students just don't want that visit to come out of their pockets (or pastures and McDonald's, in this case). We reached out to the Eternal Worm for comment, but now our email inbox is all slimy and wet, and smells vaguely of The Rot. Future updates will be published as the case develops if we feel like it.
