The Sky is Fucking Falling

Snows Problem

Students awoke to mayhem outside their windows this morning as the sky appears to be falling. Massive piles of Sky Dust can be seen piled up all around campus, with groundskeeping staff working hard to try and catch up. Students are confined to desire paths through the material as walkways are quickly becoming covered in White Mystery Fluid. At this time, the Daily Bull has limited information on this rare and possibly catastrophic event. We will try to keep everyone informed. Here is what we know so far.

Reports say that the sky began falling sometime on Sunday and was brushed off as "not that serious bro". We now know how wrong we were. We were so wrong. Reports are saying that the Sky Dandruff is cold just like my ex-wife. The cold could possibly be from the Cloud Flakes composition, as our atmosphere contains compounds like Oxygen and [GOOGLE HERE]. Do NOT put it in your mouth. You may spontaneously combust. Our Daily Bull-sponsored researchers are hard at work deciphering the composition of these unknown flakes. We advise everyone to follow MTU's CS Major Protocol and avoid going outside for the foreseeable future. The Mystery Morsels may be armed and dangerous.

The substance appears to stick to itself and melt into a dangerous compound known as "dihydrogen monoxide". Even the name sounds dangerous. The wet powder's sticky properties have made the roads especially dangerous as dudebros in their lifted trucks keep getting stuck on the SDC hill. Be advised to follow Subaru drivers and be cautious of lifted trucks. Travel is discouraged, but if you must travel, do not go gentle into that good night. Travel at your own risk and be prepared for stops, slips, slides, and slushies.

The sky continues to fall as I write this breaking news brief. I shudder at the thought of finally relating to Chicken Little. MTU has not yet announced how they will keep students safe from Those Little Cold Bastards Falling From The Sky. We contacted the administration for a statement but they only threatened to raise tuition.
