MTU Involvement Link Praised for Short, Readable, and Private Privacy Statement

Hazel Sprotitsy

It is a well-known fact that many corporations use long privacy policies and pedantic language to deter users from taking the time to fully understand their privacy rights and how they may be affected by said corporations' services. However, Michigan Technological University's Involvement Link has taken it upon itself to change that. Rather than hiding important information in fine print or endless paragraphs of language so formal that it's basically gibberish, added, also under the condition of anonymity, "I mean it's not like we really have a choice anyways – I'm glad that tech acknowledges that and doesn't make us read about how much they plan on violating my privacy. To be fair, I made a LinkedIn account without reading up on any of it because everyone else seems to be using it, so now my entire identity is pretty much in the public domain anyways. So, at least the

Privacy Statement

I confirm that the information above, including my campus email address, is accurate.

Involvement Link has stepped up and completely omitted any and all information regarding how user data is handled on their website. Involvement Link also makes the link to their Privacy Statement completely unusable until the user has created an account and accepted the Privacy Statement in order to protect the privacy of the Privacy Statement. This level of added privacy remains unmatched by pretty much all other platforms.

Many students have recognized the 13 -word Privacy Statement for its unique features, as one student described under the condition of anonymity – "I try to read the Privacy Policy on every site I use, but it takes forever – and I usually have no idea what the hell they're even saying. So, I'm glad that Involvement Link doesn't even try to explain all that shit". Another student Involvement Link isn't rubbing it in". Others have also praised the Privacy Statement for the extra reminder to make sure that they know how to spell their names and email addresses correctly – and for eliminating the obligation to feel bad about not reading it until they stumbled across it in a satirical news article.

Students who are concerned about how their information is being processed and/or curious as to why both Microsoft and Google Analytics are monitoring their activity on Involvement Link are strongly encouraged to go fuck themselves and/or try DuckDuckGo and hope that it does something.

Dining Services Announces New Changes

Foodstuffs McGee

For the past months, Dining Services has been closely monitoring opinions on food quality in the dining hall. You may have noticed an increase of surveillance cameras in the napkin dispensers and (vegan, cruelty free) microchips in your mashed potatoes – our reputable staff at The Daily Bull can now confirm that these were indeed placed on purpose for data acquisition purposes and were not mixed in after Gordon Food Services accidentally sent the dining hall a delivery meant for the NSA, as previously reported. Corrections aside, now, after reviewing the complaints and criticisms of every single student in this school, Dining Services is ready to roll out a series of changes and improvements meant to fit the preferences of (at the very least) a couple students.

First off, Tuesdays in Wadsworth Hall will feature a vegan bar, and nothing else. There will be not one speck of meat, dairy, or any semblance of an animal derived product anywhere in the dining hall. "It's an eye-for-an-eye thing for all the vegans on campus" Mr. Services said after being questioned on this change "We don't have vegan options on Wednesday through Monday, so it's only fair that we force the meat eaters to go "plant mode" (that's what we're calling it) on Tuesdays. Why only Tuesdays? I mean, vegans can just photosynthesize on the other days so they don't need to eat every day, right? Right. They'll be fine."

Another change will be made to DHH's dining hall. Formerly infamous for only being open on days that don't end in "y," DHH will now be scheduled to be open 24/7! This comes at a price, though, as for ease of use and to work around the worker shortage, the dining hall will be completely make-it-yourself and self-serve. Since the dining hall will also be open for a greater period of time, some tables will be removed to make navigation around the area easier. And by some tables, we mean all of them. The front wall will also be torn down in order to let some fresh air into the area, and - to make the transition from patio to the dining hall more seamless - the carpet will be replaced with concrete decorated with yellow lines. Another exciting element to be introduced is a new "drive through" feature, allowing people to drive in with their cars to have their meal. That's right folks, we turned Douglass Houghton Hall's dining hall into a parking lot. Staff only, 25$ parking fee for violators.

McNair dining hall will begin hiding a little elf around the kitchen every week, and whoever finds it first will be granted food poisoning immunity for up to 3 days. Finding the elf on consecutive days will not allow food poisoning immunity to stack, and it is not effective for food from any other dining halls or Burger King.

Finally, the simplest (and certainly the most wanted) change, keeping the menu updated and accurate every week, will not be implemented. Gotta keep you guys on your toes, the world is full of surprises. Keep it tenacious, huskies, and dine on.
