Velodrome Coffee Opens on MTU Campus

Sleepy Sephiroth

Residing in the abandoned shell of the former Starbucks Café in the library, Velodrome Coffee officially opened its doors on Monday to serve Michigan Tech's population of tired, depressed college students.

Also having shops in Marquette and Ishpeming, this marks the third Velodrome Coffee location overall — another step towards the company's plan to eventually open a Velodrome at every street corner in order to establish a coffee-based oligarchy.

Velodrome brought many new changes to library coffee shop with its opening, including a new modern design, a small merch store, and a working espresso machine. Along with coffee, Velodrome now offers a variety of breakfast and lunch options, such as waffles, sandwiches, an entire spit-roasted hog with an apple in it's mouth, Surströmming, and waffles again.

Student reactions have been generally positive to the new café; one interviewee, Rina Michaels, was especially pleased about the opening.

"Oh, I'm glad that Admin finally got rid of the old place" Michaels states "Even though I never went to it. Haven't checked out the new place either. Honestly, I probably won't. I don't drink coffee. Nor do I attend Michigan Tech. I graduated from UConn 8 years ago. Actually, why are you interviewing me about a coffee shop in Michigan? We're in Illinois."

Others expressed approval of the better quality of Velodrome's coffee

"It's certainly better than Starbucks" stated 2nd year Mechanical Engineer Robert Williams, "Wish I didn't have to take out a third mortgage in order to afford it. I sold a kidney to afford this lavender latte. It's not that good either, but like, I can taste the quality of the coffee."

Look At My Cute Dog. NOW!!

I miss him so much

A chief principle of journalism is that if it's in the press, then it is objectively true and unbiased. Which is why I am saying here that my dog is a very cute and good boy, and he is the bestest doggie ever. Sources attached below that prove that he is just such a good little puppy doggy who deserves all the table scraps he begs for.
