Letter to La Editor: From La Maison

Submitted by James Prochaska
~ Proud Maggot ~

Recently The Daily Bull published an article entitled What You Didn't Know About La Maison, accusing the hall of committing various awesome crimes, at the small expense of puppies, babies, and people's identities. Although we cannot confirm some of the allegations in the article, we do feel the need to apologize for some of them, as we were out of line.

In the case of the puppy soccer, we regret subjecting so many puppies to this sport. Looking back, although the games may have been fun, we likely could have used each puppy for longer periods of time, or, alternatively, raised puppies specifically for this use, rather than taking them from loving families. Although the kidnapping of puppies was a large part of the fun in the game, we now realize that it

The Speakeasy

By Olivia Zajac ~ Daily Bull

Chemical engineers are some of the most hard working, crazy students on this campus. I would know from personal experience. They slave away for hours in the basement lab with little to no sunlight or exposure to others outside of their major. Now, there is something I'm going to share with you about this fabled basement lab that many of you have never seen. Not only do we have multiple couches, a microwave (filthy, but still), and large work spaces, we have something else, something that has remained secret for many years due not only to the effort of the students, but greatly due to one professor; Dr. Sean Clancy.

Anyone who has had Clancy for class or has talked to him is aware of his affection for beer, and quite possibly his desire to have a distillation system put on campus. While talking about this with him, he may have a distant, dreamy look in his eye, at a dream that may never come true. This is nothing but a veil. Clancy runs a speak-easy in the basement of the ChemSci that only recently the school has caught on to, much to the upheaval of the chemical engineering population.

Just another reason that chemistry is more awesome than your major.

"It was such a wonderful place. I'd just tell my roommate I had an ethanol experiment that I had to run with Clancy, and off I'd go, happy as could be that I would be getting trashed on school property with no one the wiser!" one student was happy to share. "But now that Tech found out, and plan on closing it, I don't know what I'll do with myself. I guess I could get started on my lab report for Morrison..."

The great reveal of the speakeasy was, in simple terms, a fiasco. "I was there when it happened!" one engineer told me, thrusting Perry's handbook at me. "I was there when we got busted. I went in like I usually do, lugging this stupid book around, opened it to the proper ...see Moonshine on back did cross some lines, and isn't an acceptable activity in today's society.

*Punt* Somehow, that's more satisfying than just a regular old ball...

The allegations relating to stealing candy from babies, and later returning it to them lack some basic details and back story. Though in essence the stories may be factual, the babies in question were blatantly flaunting their candy, and were really almost asking to have it stolen from the - it wasn't really wholly our fault that we did this, though we will accept responsibility. We did feel bad about stealing their candy however, so we did end up returning it to them, taking precautions to ensure we wouldn't be tempted to steal it again, such as replacing the fillings with mayonnaise, and lacing it with cyanide. We admit that stealing candy from babies is not morally acceptable, but we are actively working towards resolving our problems in this area.

I cannot speak for the identify fraud accusations, as, although that does sound like a lot of fun, no one has claimed responsibility for this unfortunate act. They have truly managed to abide by La Maison's second hall rule, 'don't get caught', and should be commended. As it does seem like there is an overwhelming amount of proof pointing towards it possibly being someone in the hall, we do apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused people if their parents saw their credit card statement.

Again we apologize for our behavior, and we will attempt to do a better job of not getting caught doing inappropriate or morally reprehensible activities in the future.

This is what happens when you (Something you do) all day Brought to you by Kyle Roe!

Last night I had this totally _____ (adjective) dream, it must have been because of me _____ (something you do) all that day. I was lying on a _____ (inanimate object) when it began _____ (ing verb) with me on it. I was quite scared so I started _____ (ing verb 2). Then suddenly it _____ (-ed verb) and it turned into a _____ (noun)! I was so _____ (emotion) that I also _____ (-ed verb). Scared out of disbelief I ran to _____ (place). I stayed there for what seemed like at least _____ (number) minutes when _____ (Friend's Name) walked up to me with a big _____ (Something Big). And then s/he started _____ (Verb Ending in -ing) all over my face! I woke up with great relief to find it was not my friend doing it but my _____ (Pet Animal) instead! 🐾 page and blathered off the appropriate definition that allows admission into Clancy's place. I didn't realize that there was a freshman behind me, and she ran in, the idiot. She had transferred from MSU, and everyone knows that those fools can't handle their alcohol as well as Tech students. Clancy had just finished creating his own vodka, and damn, is it some potent stuff! She took one shot and immediately collapsed due to extreme liver failure."

No, don't worry, the silly Spartan didn't die - however, she was hospitalized for a month.

After the incident, I caught up with Clancy to see what he had to say for himself. "Well, it was good while it lasted. I mean, if you're going to be working in a field where you are very much capable of creating such an environment, why not? Brewing at home is okay, but creating these big batches is just superb! I never intended to sell it on the market either. But after the destruction of my pride and joy, and all the exposure, I'm going to actually quit the University and go into big league brewing. And of course, any chemical engineer from Tech who took my Tech. Comm. class will get a very generous discount."

Rumor has it that those giant rocks on campus are actually hollowed out and full of the equipment from the speakeasy...midnight shenanigans anyone? 🐾

NEWS BRIEFS: FLORIDA MAN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH IN WARM CAR

LAKE LINDEN - A man was found frozen to death late Sunday night in the back woods of Keweenaw County. The gentleman, whose identity remains unknown, was identified as a Floridian from his license plate, which was too interesting to be from MI. Autopsy confirmed that people from the Southern States have internal thermostats that shut the body down when outdoor temperatures drop below 55 degrees. The car's heater was set to fan level 4 and full heat. A service will be held in the DHH sauna to commemorate Frosty on Tuesday. --Liz Fujita, DB
