A Short Aside for the 90's

By Matt "Undercover Minority" Villa ~ Daily Bull

Hello. Now look at your professor, now back to me, now back to your prof, now back to me. Sadly, he isn't me, and because he's not an article in the Bull, he'll never be as interesting as me. Now look down, back up, it's me about to start discussing a fad from the 90's that should rise like a phoenix from its own ashes of overuse.

Breakaway pants. If you were raised at anytime during the 90's, you know what these are. For those who weren't or don't remember, they are those warm-up pants with buttons on the side that are easily removed by pulling off forcefully. Now, these things just haven't disappeared; they are still used by basketball players and other athletes, however they never came to such prominence as in the 90's. Everyone wore them, from the junior varsity

A Book Made of Human Faces: a Comparison by John Pastore

Which the greater evil? The questionable immoral Facebook, or the unspeakable evil Necronomicon? While it would seem an easy question, we have to really examine this.

First, the Necronomicon doesn't really exist outside [of Miskatonic University]. Due to the vagaries of copyright law, specifically the action of the jerks at Disney, it seems that this intellectual property will end up outside of the public domain for the coming centuries. Facebook acts in just the opposite way: most all the information you present defaults to a hyper-public state, and your details are readily available to a few corporations on an opt-out basis. Ridiculous copyright vs public exposure of private individuals: a bit of a toss up.

Second, the Necronomicon archives

the history of the Great Old Ones, gods from beyond the stars, and their hideous plans for the destruction of humanity in the future. Facebook archives the embarrassing things you did while drunk at that party last week, s p e a k s loudly the present condition of man, and foretells future events in one of the creepiest fashions possible - as the event approaches, it appears within the Facebook, as if it had always been present but only now is being revealed. Given the sheer audacity of some of these premonitions, the terrifying accuracy only adds to the Facebook's conquest of this sphere.

Third, the Necronomicon was penned by the mad Arab, Abdul Alhazard, an adherent of the resting old gods and an basketball players who never won a game to the fat kid that just liked the convenience, these things were everywhere.

One of the best parts of these pants was just what they were, pants that at any time you could just pull off. Imagine how awesome those would be now. Think of the possibilities. About to sex up that sexy lady on your bed, WHABAM!!!, pants already off.

Sitting on your ass playing WoW and it's getting a little too hot? KAZOW!!! what a nice breeze.

Trying to scar little kids for life down at the park, FELONY!!! done and done.

Getting ready to get in the game while sitting on the bench? Well don't bother, you were picked last and only picked because the good team needed even teams for destroying.

As you can clearly see, this is a phenomenon that should be brought back in force. As Kelly Clarkson sang in her song Breakaway, you just need to tear off your breakaway pants, and go spread-eagle for your manager... was there something about wings in that song? Never mind, not important. WEAR MOAR BREAKAWAY PANTSUUUUUU!!!!

... d20+your life from front explorer of ancient cities of creatures not like ourselves. It belies secrets and rituals that reveal truths about our existence that would drive the mortal insane. Facebook was copied by Mark Zuckerberg from the work of his [at-the-time] friends. It instead attracts the insane to it, and steadily wears upon their sanity with mind numbing 'games' and the social obligation to bear their soul in text for all to see. We can see that it renders people mentally unfit - just look at how it affects their language. Words being spoken in arcane codes and numbers, like some vile spell casters. While the Necronomicon may tell you how to summon a mind-warping Old One, the Facebook has been far more successful in ruining more minds,

Who wouldn't go for more pants like that!?

"Frustrated" Sauron says about subjects

By Jon "Big-O" Mahan ~ Daily Bull

After last month's rising rebellions and wars in the kingdom of Mordor, Sauron has come to realize that his subjects, slaves, and peasants, may be a little frustrated. It's uncertain what brought him to this conclusion.

Immediately following the largest outbreaks of civil unrest last month, Sauron has held a press conference regarding the uproar.

"It has become apparent to me that some of my 'subjects' are... quite angry with me. It would seem that my over reaching hand and eye have not gotten to them yet, allowing them the ability and the idea that they can revolt. It is unfortunate, and as supreme dictator, I take full responsibility. I promise, that if I am able to take them down, that this will never happen again."

After losing in landslide revolts, many are beginning to question if maybe Sauron is out of touch with his subjects, and maybe even, losing his ability to keep tabs on them, and be a good supreme dictator and overlord.

"I don't think you can argue that.

I think what you can argue is that maybe we're in neutral. When I got this empire, it was in a free-fall. And it's stabilized now. But, it might not be going forward fast enough for people to be under my control as quickly as is necessary... so they think that the empire is in reverse, when I think you can only argue it's in neutral." Sauron retorted. Many reporters lost their lives that day for asking questions that Sauron has explicitly denied being able to be asked, such as if he thinks that the empire is in trouble, if he will be ousted by another supreme overlord in 2012, or if he thinks he has to do major concessions to reach continue doing anything in the empire.

I... am willing to work with the new rebellion... If they think there is a way I can better my control over the people so that they are less able to break from it, or perhaps less wanting to break from it, then I'm all ears. I'll listen" He said, with a toothy grin. It's become apparent that Sauron is a bit lat. For nearly a year and a half now, rebellions have been popping up everywhere across the empire. It's assumed that by 2012, all of Sauron's empire will be gone.

YOU. HEY. I heard you won a raffle from the Food Court in the MUB! Yeah, I'm talking to you, KIM GORBUTT and MARK DIT- TENDER. Congratulations etc. etc. blah blah balloons happy joy. But where's MY PRIZE?!

Settle down, ostrich. You're not eligible anyway. But, for humans, there's an ad in the Bull each Tuesday that could win you prizes from the MUB Keweenaw Commons! They're open late now, all the way til 8! Yummy yummy!

Finally, let us look at their composition. The Necronomicon is a book made from an actual human face and is inked in blood. The Facebook displays the faces of everyone you know and love, and is inked in PHP. Again, a bit of a tossup. All together it is clear that the Facebook is the greater of the two evils, and as a representative of the new Evil Empire, I welcome it.
