New US-Canadian Bridge Really Canada Takeover Ploy

By Alex Dinsmoor
Up 'n Coming Writer

The new bridge to Canada that's proposed to be built North of Detroit - to ease the traffic and wait times at the Ambassador Bridge - has been hailed by some as the single greatest thing to ever grace the borders Michigan, but is it worth it? Will the costs of the bridge outweigh the benefits? The Detroit International Bridge Company certainly doesn't think so.

According to a Detroit International Bridge Company spokesman, the new bridge will cost over $3 trillion and will be paid for completely by taxpayers. "If we build this bridge, the taxes in Michigan will increase 9001% and each citizen of the state has to turn in their piggybanks to help pay. The Michigan and Canadian governments won't pay a single cent towards the bridge and will instead

Parking Lot Insanity

By Olivia Zajac~ Daily Bull

Welcome back to campus, and to the most unhelpful thing on this campus: parking lots. Yes, even less helpful than the registrar's office when the school decides to just drop your whole schedule, or simply answering "serotonin" to every psychology problem. Parking on campus is probably where you will get the most frustration of your whole experience. To be a commuter blows. Almost as much as being a first year student.

Rumor has it that after the crap everyone went through last year with the millions of parking tickets and violations, that some students got wise and started parking at the SDC for free. The school was not pleased, and has since created the Blood-feud Allocation of Motor Medium, or B.A.M.M.

The function of B.A.M.M is to allow upperclassmen to get the better parking, since silly freshman live on campus and don't really need their cars. They match a freshman with a junior, senior, or super senior and then summon the two parties down into the parking lot, to the exact spot that the upperclassman would be issued. They then allow each party to choose a weapon, and they battle over the parking spot. The hope is that the upperclassmen will simply scare the ever-loving shit out of all freshmen, hence creating this 'blood feud' between the classes over parking.

The need for parking wars between the academic classes was fully realized after students took drastic action to get a space in the St. Albert's lot.

use your money to pay for extensive parties at the Manoogian Mansion," said Manuel Moroun, the owner of the Detroit International Bridge Company.

"Governor Snyder wants to make the people of Michigan suffer," Moroun stated in a press conference held this past labor day weekend, protesting the building of the bridge. "America doesn't want this bridge - only the socialist Canadians want it to import cocaine into our country," Moroun protested. "Keep our borders protected from these coked up, America hating socialists!"

In order to spread their message to the people of Michigan, the DIBC stated that they would air their highly informative and interesting ads all around the state, including the Keweenaw Peninsula. "Even though no one from the Upper Peninsula will ever see or use the bridge, they need to know that it's destroying America," stated Moroun. "Snyder and the Canadian government are also outsourcing the bridge building jobs to Mexico to save money!" blurted out Moroun as we were leaving the interview.

We attempted to contact the Snyder administration for comment, but they were unable to get back to us by the time of publication. We can only assume they were meeting with Canada to destroy America. ☹

"Ideally, there will only have to be a handful of upperclassman vs. freshman death battles to get the message across. We're going to spin it to the media as the campus goes greener by encouraging carpooling and no-fuel types of transportation for getting to campus," was the word from the creators of BAMM. "There are simply too many students at this university anyhow. We can't seem to raise our entrance standards, so killing a couple freshmen here or there seems a logical solution to dissuade the masses."

"We think we're going to start with some of the senior martial artists enrolled in the school, to really get the message across sufficiently. Silly little freshmen won't know what hit them, and maybe they'll learn to stop wearing their lanyards around their necks when they're getting choked by it," noted one of the undergraduates who helped flesh out BAMM.

BAMM will start being implemented by the second week of class. Good luck everyone! ☹

News in Briefs: Pizza Smearred All Over Downtown

by Jeremy Mr. Sunshine Loucks ~ Daily Bull Alumni

Tuesday, Houghton MI: Pure excitement and careless driving are being cited in an accident that occurred in downtown Houghton, as a vehicle containing 3 college students rolled out of the Little Caesar's parking lot, across Montezuma Ave, and down the hillside, eventually crashing into the war memorial's brick façade. Although none of the students sustained any more than minor injuries, the wall and the three "fresh" pizzas they had picked up were not so lucky. Many bricks and the pizzas suffered catastrophic destruction.

The driver, identified as one Stu Pidd, was apologetic. "I mean, I was so excited! We walked out of there with THREE large pizzas for only 5 bucks each! I've never heard of such a great deal before! We were on our way back to the dorms, ready to turn out of the parking lot, and the smell just hit me. So hot, so fresh; it was heavenly. I forgot to turn and suddenly we hit this dang wall. Ruined all the pizzas, and my '84 Honda. Actually, we were going to still eat the pizzas, but some homeless guy stole them while we were dazed. Totally bogus!"

City officials hope to have the memorial repaired within a week. Said one planner, "We've been wanting to clean up the memorial anyway, from the stink created by skateboarders, the 3 bums, and that Tea Party meeting held there back in April."

No word as of yet of Mr. Pidd's punishment, but it will most likely consist of community service, including shoveling McNair hill during the winter and directing traffic on the Yooper Loop during parent visit weekends. ☹

At least the car wasn't moving faster, or a massive explosion of toppings and body parts and who knows what could have ensued.
