PEP BAND DIRECTOR FINDS GREENER GRASS ON THE WHITACRE SIDE

by Jeanine Chmielewski ~ Daily Bull ~

It has become apparent that there is some tension within the Huskies Pep Band - and not the good kind either. At last week's Thursday's rehearsal, all of the snare drum players were exiled with the exception of one. It was determined later that this single snare was allowed to stay because he is a defective snare drum player. He can play Hey Pachuco all the way through correctly.

A discovery was made while he completed this legendary feat: he is not human. He cannot be. He is a snare drum player THAT DOESN'T RUSH! The entire band was astonished and he got a standing ovation from the bass drums. The snares stormed back into practice later claiming that they knew what they were doing. After another

News In Briefs: Bad Buttersworth Causes Bad Blood Between Butter and Broccoli

by Ruben Garcia ~ Daily Bull

Well folks, there is trouble in the Hidden Valley! Late last night, a concerned Lady of the Land-o-Lakes reported hearing shouting and commotion coming from the Buttersworth residence. "I woke up and heard shouting. They were yelling some very terrible things at each other - not too decent.

Mr and Mrs. Buttersworth have always been nice people since I arrived here in the Hidden Valley."

I decided to talk to another two sources known for their gossip. "Oh lordy! They were making quite a ruck-us," Aunt Jemima said while handing me some of her signature pancakes. "Then again, I never did like them - moving in on my territory," she muttered. It is well known that the Buttersworths' fence overlaps the property line of Jemima.

"Oh stop making such a fuss, woman!" comes the bellow of Uncle Ben. "You didn't hear it from me, but Mr. Buttersworth has been having problems making the butter flow, if you get my drift. It's not surprising a fine woman like Mrs. Buttersworth went to another place to get her syrup stirred."

What came from Aunt Jemima's mouth, however, concerning that 'over-sweet whore,' was so tasteless it could not be written (at least not in English as we currently understand

According to investigative reporter Ruben, the Jolly Green Giant ain't all green after all. What's up, doc, indeed.

After pumping the locals for the gossip, I decided to go straight to the horse's mouth. After getting chased off of the Buttersworth estate, I decided to go to the opulent Hidden Valley Ranch. The Jolly Green Giant, ... see Jolly indeed on back ... Jolly indeed from front or as he likes to be called, Jeffy, was there and told me the entire story.

"She just needed some relief," Jeffy explains. "Her juices were flowing and she was about to burst. Mr. Buttersworth just didn't have the strength. So, she asked me and I complied. I pumped her a little, so what? Yeah, she had some of my dressing on her face, but it wasn't that big of a deal."

When I asked what will happen now he had this to say: "Well, she can access my carrot whenever she wants, but Mr. Buttersworth has another thing coming. I own half of this valley and if he wants a war, he'll get one."

Well readers, it seems like there is a margarine-a-trois that is riling people up. Before the Hamburger Helper gets involved or news of the scandal taints the ears of sweet little Debbie, I am signing off. Blue Leader Out. 🐻

... White Acres from front run of Hey Pachuco it was obvious that they did not.

"We were fine before," yelled the inhuman snare, "but as soon as the rest of you show up, the tempo goes to HELL!" The other members of concussion could not help but to agree.

The supreme pope conducting master of the Pep Band, Nick Enz (so short the smurfs think he is small), has also created much tension in the Pep Band. Due to unknown reasons, though possibly related to the issue stated above, he has canceled all practice and cult meetings for the band last week. The players were confused and the stripes were seen wandering around campus looking for something to do. There had been blasphemous rumors floating around the visual and performing arts department that Nick had found a new best friend.

His old best friend, the Pep Band, was disheartened to learn that the rumors were true. Nick Enz has a new best friend. His name: Eric Whitacre.

Whitacre and Mr. Enz had been seen together since early Thursday morning. It was even being said that Mr. Whitacre was being allowed his own concert on the Rosza stage last Friday night.

The Pep Band was distraught when they were informed of this. "We want a concert..." wWined a trumpet. "He never lets us play in public." Hockey, basketball, football, volleyball, and any other sporting event apparently do not count as public.

We can play classical music too," explained a bass drummer. "We even have a Tchaikovsky piece in our folders." It is unclear if the Pep Band will ever get a concert, however, just by sheer force of will they will more than likely do so one day. They are, after all, the second best feeling in the world. 🐻

You. Yes you. you cannot resist my stare. So why did you not see me. WHY? FOR SHAME.

News In Briefs: Epidemic Hits Michigan Tech Students

by Jon 'Big-O' Mahan ~ Daily Bull

A new epidemic has hit the MTU student body, and it is a far more deadly thing than swine flue, gingivitis, or even the dreaded purple vest guy. That's right students, the epidemic known only as ART is sweeping the campus by swarm.

Hundreds of students across the campus are deemed to be at risk of the deadly disease that takes the brains of those infected, and makes them.... creative (gasp!). MTU officials are worried about the implications of free thinking engineers in the field.

"It's a tragic thought. We try to make our engineers in the best definition of the word. Cut, and copy for every single one, but no matter how hard we try, some seem to just get.... infected. A truly grave problem," said a one Michigan Tech official.

In the meantime, new sightings of the symptoms seem to come up all across the campus. From the various art projects, to we at the Daily Bull ourselves, art is everywhere on campus. A most disturbing thought!

However, if you are spotted with such art-ings, and they do happen to apply to the Daily Bull and its distributed issues, feel free to show us. We here at the Daily Bull are more than happy to 'treat' you by putting up your art, here, just like these pictures (BULLCEPTION) or on our facebook.

So if you want to get 'treated' for your art condition, than you need do nothing more than drop it off at our office in the MUB, or send it to our email at bull@mtu.edu, or lastly, subscribe to our facebook, and submit it to our wall. We eagerly await your 'symptoms.' 🐻

The first sighting, confirmed, of the epidemic.

Reports came in of an earlier case, however, which is now confirmed. This epidemic known as art is getting out of hand.
