Bull vs Bull: ANTI-KARDASHIAN WHAT WUT!?

By Kara Bakowski
~ Daily Bull ~

President Obama has recently made it clear that he does not like his children watching Keeping Up with the Kardashians. But can you blame them? Of all the shows for middle-school-aged girls to watch, Keeping Up with the Kardashians provides a terrible influence that is only eclipsed by the performance of Snooki and the other fist-pumpers of the Shore.

His girls are expected to be professional, proper angels in the eyes of the media. The Kardashian sisters are anything but proper angels. While Mrs. Obama may be fine with the girls watching it if they learn a lesson, do they really learn the lessons? Kourt, Kim, and Khloe don't seem to (editor's note: OMG KKK EVEN THEIR NAMES ARE EVIL). Every episode involves them flaring up at their mom, significant others,

Bull vs Bull: Kardashian Glory!

by Alex Dinsmoor ~ Daily Bull

Recently, President Obama publicly stated his dislike that his daughters watched the popular television show Keeping Up With The Kardashians. This announcement angered not only bloggers around the world, but also the Kardashian family. We as a nation cannot stand here when our president bashes the perfect model American family!

For those of you who are uncultured CS students, Keeping Up With The Kardashians is a show portraying a famous family and their daily doings, from doing half naked photo shoots for PETA, to getting X-Ray scans of their breast implants to compare them to their daughter's extensive posteriors. Such activities as these and more shine a light into the household of an average family.

Obama's distaste for the show came into light after a recent interview with the first lady, Michelle Obama, on their children's television habits. Michelle noted that even though they are strict on some issues, the first family does allow their children some freedom when it comes to their television choices. However, Barack does not always enjoy their children's favorite shows.

"Barack really thinks some of the Kardashians - when they watch that stuff - he doesn't like that as much," The first lady stated. "I'm more concerned with how they take it in - what did you learn when you watched that, and if they are learning the right lessons, like, that was crazy, then I'm like, okay."

Even though Michelle knows that some of the tactics that the show portrays aren't what the average person would call "normal," the first lady knows that when

The Kardashians are such great role models that even the White House cat wants to be like Khloe! The first kitty is quoted as saying, "I want to make the boys meeee-owwww."

... What is This from front

or each other, with no deviation from show to show. Not a healthy example for America's not-so-little girls.

Speaking of unhealthy examples... Kim has a sex tape. Is that REALLY what we want America's sweethearts doing when they grow up? Kourtney has a child out of wedlock. While that works fine for her, not all of us have a famous family, a TV show, and millions of dollars to our name. Khloe is the only sister that could be considered a good example, and that just gets overshadowed because she has to deal with the other two.

And the swearing. Could you imagine Sasha coming up to her father and saying "DADDY YOU'RE A BITCH I WANNA WATCH THE SHOW?" Oh the nightmares and bad press. The girls are at the age where we learn what is acceptable social behavior and what is not. It's the age when we all cussed each other's faces off because we thought it was cool, and when we learned what sex was. Sasha and Malia are at the age where anything will be an influence, and I for one don't want to see them making asses of themselves in front of international officials ("Mister Sarkozy looks like a fuckin' bro!"). And not everything is bleeped - vocabulary like "bitch" and "douchebag" is thrown around like socks during zombie season.

Obama's got the right idea. Judgment of his parenting skills could be on the line. Whatever chances of re-election he had would disappear if his girls start acting like normal middle-schoolers. As a parent whose job relies on his public image, you can't blame him. 🙄 you look beyond the sex tapes and the excessive self branding, the Kardashians family is in a way like every family in this great nation; doing what they can to make it day by day in this crazy world we live in.

With the first lady on our side, we as a nation must understand that although we may love our president for some things, his distaste for Keeping Up With The Kardashians cannot be tolerated. The Kardashian sisters are role models for the youth of this nation; they express their inner creativity, they are independent women who know how to run a business, they know how to have fun, and most importantly they're beautiful! Such shining role models should be praised in the household, no matter what Barack "Buzzkill" Obama says! Who is he to judge such a compassionate family anyways?

We as a nation must learn that even though our President doesn't enjoy an intellectual show based upon a family whose love for this great nation surpasses even the most passionate patriot, doesn't mean the show is bad, and in fact we all should strive to be more like the Kardashians. The life lessons learned from their show are so profound, every citizen should observe them, even if our president does not approve. Obama may be our President and the father of his kids, but this is a free country and his kids should be allowed to watch what ever promiscuous shows they want! 🙄
