Cheap Porn for Struggling Families

by John Earnest ~ Guest Writer

This Wednesday, the FCC and several cable companies will band together to unveil the "Connect to Compete" program, a plan which offers inexpensive high-speed internet access to low-income households.

Currently over 100 million American households do not have access to hardcore pornography from the comfort of their own homes. This plan will bring smut of virtually unlimited content and format to over 17 million of those unfotunates.

"It's really heartbreaking what some people have to go through to get their rocks off these days," says a prominent politician who wishes to remain anonymous. "It's a proven fact that children who grow up without free access to fetishistic material and explicit anime are disadvantaged compared to their wealthier peers, if you... uh... know what I mean."

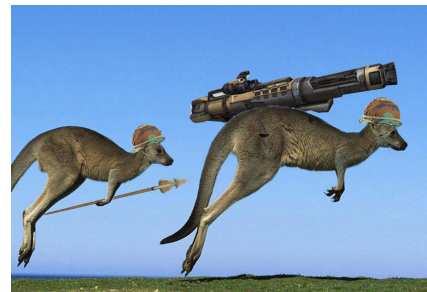

Manufacturers will offer families refurbished computers at cost and Microsoft intends to donate copies of their operating system to ensure that the machines can run popular peer-to-peer filesharing applications, run pirated games and become infected with the latest viruses and malware.

US Marines Join Forces with Kangaroos to Defend Australia

by Liz Fujita ~ Daily Bull

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA – "G'day, Australia. And g'day to my fellow Americans watching this address," began President Barack Obama in a press conference this last Wednesday. "I'm here to announce a beaut of a plan that we have. Crikey! It's going to really help protect Australia's barbies from having their shrimp stolen, if you catch my meaning."

Obama and the Australian Prime Minister Steve Irwin Julia Gillard decided to start placing US Marines in Australia as a means of protecting the Aus-sies from impending Chinese takeover – or something – but that's not the half of it. The Daily Bull recently discovered that Obama and Gillard have long been planning to increase military strength in Australia to protect its citizens from how fucking scary everything in Australia is.

"We are a proud nation," said Gillard, "but we are not too proud to admit that we're afraid of half the weird nature shit that's out there in the Outback." The US marines would each be paired with a "Brother Kangaroo," the two leaders explained. This decision came as a result of Obama learning that when kangaroos get mad or defensive, they can kick some serious ass. "We believe that giving the marines a 'roo as both a fighting partner and a bitchin' steed, we'll be able to tackle much of what the Outback has to throw at us."

The marines have undergone extensive, state-of-the-art training for dealing with Australia's more deadly creatures. For one, they've all taken rigorous courses in how to handle snakes like Steve Irwin. Noted one marine, "It's actually not that hard. You mostly yell CROIKEY and hold the snake at arm's length or more." Or more, he explained, is basically the armspan you get when you truly, desperately wish that you had go-go-gadget arms. "It adds about two inches of reach, if you're really terrified."

Another mandatory training course is the "Don't Trust Anything in the Water" curriculum. There, marines are trained to be skeptical of every single thing they see under the water. Is that a rock? Nope! It's a stonefish, the most venomous fish in the world! Is that a pretty purple anemone? Wrong again! It's a blue ring octopus that can paralyze you! "That one is really stressful," Obama mused. "We basically have them look at two identical pictures and guess which one will kill them. Often, it's a trick question, and both will result in some kind

This will bring in a new sort of people to the marines too. Furries.

Obama's New Economic Plan

by Cameron Long and Big O ~ Daily Bull

AP – The Obama administration has just announced a new economic plan for the United States. Secretary of the Treasury Timothy Geithner and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Ben Bernanke, primary architects of the plan, are "very confident" that the plan will lift the US and, by extension, the global economy out of the current recession.

The current plan of Keynesian deficit spending will be phased out after "no more than four" more rounds of quantitative easing. The new plan will involve a massive cash influx, paid for by the American people.

Disguised as social programs, the plan will trick citizens into paying an effective tax rate of 57%. The glut of money will be divided evenly among President Obama, Geithner, Bernanke, and other involved officials. The new economic theory behind the plan has unofficially been named after its inspiration: Kardashian economics.

The plan is expected to take place in the coming January, and will affect anyone who makes even a dollar. It will also tax non-cash gifts, such as free use of parks that cost money. New York and other cities are seeking to tax Occupy Wallstreet/San Diego/etc, for their use of the private parks they've received for free. Obama has claimed this was inadvertent.

Needless to say many news organizations are currently not running the story as it sheds bad light on the savior of this nation. It is expected that the public will learn of this new tax plan that Obama has proposed sometime within the next 4-6 weeks, and will likely reach the Supreme Court come 1.5 years after it has come into effect. It certainly proves to be an interesting election cycle ahead.

of pain or harm. Fortunately, by the end, we felt confident that our team would be able to honor the memory of Steve Irwin by not dying in the water."

As for the kangaroos, training was somewhat more difficult than planned. It turns out that training a kangaroo to wear a military helmet is not hard, but training them to keep grenades on belts rather than in their pouches has been rather difficult. "The kangaroos make marvelous assault mounts," said Prime Minister Gillard. "They hop around nicely during patrols, then take off like a rocket when there is actual danger. I've even seen them kick the ever-loving shit out of wild dogs that tried to steal the marines' food."

Both Obama and Gillard are very optimistic that the marines will be able to combat some of the deadlier creatures dwelling in Australia's waters and deserts. "If nothing else," said Obama, "the kangaroos will be ready to stand by our side and defend America against Canada in the future."

New SUPER Cheap Meal Developed!

by Jon 'Big-O' Mahan ~ Daily Bull

Researchers at the Danish University of Humanism (DUH) have, after hundreds of thousands of Euro's of research, found the cheapest meal that is available to persons whom are low on money. The answer was a toast sandwich. That's right. A toast. Sandwich.

It's very simple to make. See, what you do is take your brain, and let it fall out of your skull. You don't need it to cook. It's only a little harder than voting, which you don't need your brain for anyways. So once your brain is removed, you simply place a peice of bread in the toaster. Now. This is the hard part. What you do is you select how toasty you want your toast. Did you get that? How toasty do you want your toast? There, dial that into your toaster. Or type it in, or whatever, depending on if you're a rich ass mother f---er.

Now, go entertain yourself some how. This can be done multiple ways. Masturbating is always good, and might supply you, if you fancy it, with a cheap additional sauce to put on your toast. CREAMY! Now, once the toast has popped, you're going to want to get some seasonings and more bread. Remember this was 1 peice of toast, so you need 2 peices of bread more, to make a sandwich. Once you've got your seasonings, just add more until you're done.

Some common seasonings to add are pepper, salt, and butter. These don't add too much to the flavor of your delicious bread, but do modify it slightly, just enough for you, and don't add many calories or change the nutritional facts all that much. Personally I have a bit more exotic taste. I prefer a cooked Egg of Hopes and Dreams, lightly seasoned with the Tears of Newborn Infants, and then served on the toast that's been mildly spread with The Blood of the Innocent. Throw some Hookers and Blow (ground up) into the equation, and smack that bitch of a sandwich together, and BAM, instant delicious. And at a base price of only 7.5 pence, this delicious bitch can be yours!

Researches at DUH have also been responsible for such findings as THE SUN IS HOT, and SNOW IS COLD. Also that Ass-capes are amazing. And that SHIT is a curse word. The researchers at DUH are now looking at the effects of alcohol on college students.
