The Moneyshot: Tech Broomball on FanDuel

Wendal Starkiller

The whack of the ball, the crack of a helmet on the ice, the miasma of sweat and hot coco, such a magnificent ruckus could only mean one thing: Yes, ladies and gentlemen, Broomball is back! Each and every player, slipping, sliding, breaking, crying to make their mark on the ice. Or, at the very least, to cover the parlay. Because this season introduces a new player, not a frat, nor a hall, but a bookie. With the federal legalization of sports betting in 2018, many websites rose to prominence in the gambling sphere, like hot air balloons shoveling hard-earned cash into their fires. But as the years progressed, the Viceroy of Vice at FanDuel encountered a problem: there just wasn't enough sports to sate the throngs of degenerate gamblers that they had created.

"We at FanDuel expertly combined addictive, algorithm-driven social media with sports gambling in order to squeeze as much money from the sod-chewing underclass as we could. But after a while, we realized we'd done our jobs too well! We had more gamblers than sports to bet on! Christ, we added F1, Lacrosse, Rugby, even fucking Darts, but it still wasn't enough! So in order to fill this chasm in the human soul, we decided to open up to Tech Broomball. Cause why not? These hogs will bet on anyth- Wait is that a recorder? Are you recording this? Get the fuc-" Thad "I Don't Care For The Pooors" Gremlly, COO of FanDuel, cornered at houseparty in Manhattan

The introduction of FanDuel has already been making waves on campus. People are flying into Hancock airport from all across the country to watch the games, crowding the streets of downtown and paths between classes. One such gambler attempted to bribe a broomball referee with $500; luckily the ref, being blind and deaf, was incapable of taking it. A few of the Ponzi Pilgrims have even enrolled in statistics courses to try and improve their odds.

"I've learned a lot about R and standards of deviation, which is all well and good, but I don't understand how this is gonna get my house back."

Gunn Mudd, Gambler and End-of-Rope Resident

The Houghton City Council has described the whole affair as "Weird" and "Sad". But how will this affect the broomball season going forward? Will the government ever come to their senses and regulate sports betting? Are we in for a gambling addiction epidemic? Will Gunn Mudd pass stats? Only time will tell. But to all of you, players, betters, winners, and broken-kneed losers, I say, Broom On!
